Too young to call her "Grand-mum" as his older brother and sister do, five-months-old Prince Andrew nestles in arms of Queen Mother Elizabeth in garden of Clarence House at royal party marking the

Tired Firefighters Given a Breather

KAMLOOPS (CP) — While Kamloops and Nelson districts reaped the benefits of rain Thursday the northern Prince George district paid the price in lightning strikes as new summer storms passed over British Columbia's fire battle fields.

"This is the kind of breather we really needed," said Kamloops forester Norman McRae after his district received the first helpful rain in its month-long firefighting campaign.

No lightning strikes were reported in the district and in some areas as much as half an inch of rain was recorded.

While the storms also brought some rain to southern parts of the Prince George district, nothing but lightning was reported from the western area and eight new fires were discovered during the day.

Spotter planes were expected to find further outbreaks. There now are 230 fires in the Kamloops district, 100 in the Nelson district and 38 in the Prince George district, which had suffered little from forest fires until this week.

Most dramatic effect of the rain was seen in the Sicamous area, 70 miles east of here, where half an inch fell on 17 fires previously burning out of control.

Mr. McRae said the rain gave threefold assistance to the 2,470 men and 159 bulldozers fighting fires in the Kamloops district.

It enabled the firefighters to complete guards around the major outbreaks, gave them a chance to get within striking distance of the flames in smaller outbreaks and tackle them before they could spread and made it possible to isolate hot spots of bigger blazes.

French West Africa

Obscurity to Freedom Upper Volta's Big Leap

QUAGADOUGOU, Upper Volta (AP)—Upper Volta, not even marked on maps 13 years ago, yesterday became an independent nation.

The proclamation of independence was read just after midnight Thursday night by President Maurice Yameogo in this inland state in old French West Africa. Upper-Volta has 3,500,000 people.

The Upper Volta region was created in 1947 when France reorganized the administrative boundaries that formerly divided the territory among neighboring Sudan, Niger and the Ivory Coast.

Upper Volta was the third state to proclaim independence from France this week. The others were Dahomey and Niger. The Ivory Coast will follow in two days.

All the African states of the French community will be independent by next November but all have stated their desire to remain in, and share the economic benefits of, the community.

'Can't Beat Bennett'

Socreds Will Win, Liberals Gain, City Voters Feel

By TERRY HAMMOND

An overwhelming number of Greater Victoria voters believe B.C.'s Socred government will be swept back into power, perhaps with an increased majority, a Colonist survey showed last night.

A sampling of voters in all parts of the area showed relatively strong support for the Bennett administration, but an even stronger conviction that it can't be beaten in 1960.

A majority of those contacted felt the government would gain not less than two seats to add to its present overwhelming 38-seat roster. And of those who saw the government increasing its strength a majority expected it to come from the CCF party.

Some 30 per cent of those who saw the Socreds as invincible on Sept. 12 were anxious to proclaim that they were not supporters of the party but were simply impressed by its power to win the election.

Among those who felt the government would win the election but lose seats in the process, the prevailing opinion was that the Liberals would gain.

About 20 per cent of those reached by the Colonist said they thought the government would hold its own at the polls, neither gaining nor losing.

A mere 5 per cent predicted

the government's downfall and most of these admitted they were strongly linked to one of the opposition parties. All asked to remain anonymous. Following is a random sampling of comments received by the Colonist:

Don't Let Rights Ever Erode John D's Plea

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons passed the bill of rights unanimously Thursday and Prime Minister Diefenbaker said it now is up to every Canadian to see that fundamental freedoms and human rights are never allowed to erode away.

In an emotional wind-up speech in the debate which began on July 1, Dominion Day, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

Smithers Girl B.C.'s 90th Polio Case

VANCOUVER (CP)—Smithers girl became B.C.'s 90th polio case this year Thursday.

The girl, not identified, was flown here by an RCAF Dakota for treatment.

Meanwhile, a provincial health official disclosed that Canadian and United States drug manufacturers are producing a Russian-type oral vaccine for testing purposes.

Night Court Has No Cases

PORT COQUITLAM (CP)—Nobody showed up Wednesday night for the second session of the Lower Mainland's only night traffic court.

There were no cases to be heard, so Magistrate J. J. Lye stayed home, too. "I'm willing to come in and hear the cases," he said, "but first someone's got to lay the charges."

Kefauver Nominated

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Senator Estes Kefauver Thursday night was re-nominated for a third term over segregationist Judge Andrew T. Taylor in a Democratic primary billed as a test of Southern U.S. attitudes over civil rights and states rights.

Death Penalty Sidetracked

OTTAWA (CP)—It appears unlikely that the question of abolishing Canada's death penalty for murder will be decided at the current session of Parliament.

More probable is that the issue will be revived at the next session either by continuing debate on a private member's resolution favoring abolition, or on the strength of a possible government proposal to deal with the matter.

On one hand, the leading

"I think what we have done has been right. I think it has been for the good of Canada. I think it witnesses our belief in the guidance of God, and realization that law, justice and morality can be put in words and perpetuated in statutes."

The bill, he said, was something to which he had devoted "a not inconsiderable part of my life and interest." It was fitting that it should pass in the Commons on the anniversary of the outbreak of the First World War, a day that marked the beginning of the divisions which prevail between peoples and nations in the world today.

CONGRATULATIONS

He congratulated members of the special Commons committee which studied the bill. They represented Italian, German, Chinese, Polish, Ukrainian, and Arabic races as well as the Anglo-Saxon and French races which originally united to form Canada.

The bill of rights, he reiterated, is a first step. When and if Parliament and the provinces find a way to bring the British North America Act into Canadian domicile and amend it here without reference to the United Kingdom Parliament, a first objective will be to write a Dominion provincial bill of rights.

NEXT SESSION

Parliament will be asked at its next session—he hinted it might come earlier than the expected January opening—to rewrite the War Measures Act, which gives the cabinet tyrannical powers in wartime. This statement was taken as a strong hint that a fall session of Parliament might be called.

JOE WALKER
... fastest man.

2,150 Miles an Hour New Air Speed Mark

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—The X-15 rocket plane zoomed high over the California desert Thursday on the fastest manned flight on record—2,150 miles an hour.

Hooky, curly-haired Joe Walker may even have gone a trifle faster. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said it expects instrument checks to raise the mark. Walker went all out in the X-15 for four minutes and 15 seconds. He hit maximum speed at 66,000 feet, just as his fuel supply gave out, then coasted to 78,000 before swooping down for a 200-mile-an-hour landing on the sun-baked mud of Rogers Dry Lake.

He eclipsed the old mark of 2,094 m.p.h. set in the X-2 research plane in 1956 by air force Capt. Milburn Apt—who was killed moments later.

Deadly 'Meal' Kills Tots

DANIA, Fla. (AP) — A lunch prepared by 12-year-old Ernest Nuby Jr. caring for his six brothers and sisters Thursday killed three of the children and left two others seriously ill. Coroner's officers termed the deaths accidental.

The deadly meal consisted of guava fruit, pancake powder, sliced onion, salt and spices—and roach powder.

Sheriff's Deputy Jim Spears says each Negro child got about two teaspoonfuls of the roach powder, which was fatal to Dorothy May, 4, Marilyn Juanita, 9, and Charles, 11.

Two other children are seriously ill. Ernest didn't eat any of the mixture and none was fed to Juanita, 2.

The parents had left Ernest in charge of the children while they were at work.

Saturday the Day Troops Will March

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (AP)—Katanga's Premier Moise Tshombe Thursday night raised doubts about the arrival of United Nations troops in his province but there were firm indications that the UN intends to move in Saturday as scheduled.

Tshombe, who declared Wednesday that UN forces would have to fight their way into Katanga, held a 2½-hour meeting with Ralph Bunche, troubleshooting UN under-secretary.

The premier later told reporters UN soldiers may not arrive Saturday. Then he hedged and said he would not be surprised if they come after all.

Bunche declined any comment on the talks, but reliable informants in Leopoldville, capital of the Congo central government, said there has been no change in UN plans to move troops into Katanga. They added that it is unlikely there will be any change.

AFRICANS DUE

Three companies of Swedish troops in the Leopoldville area packed their gear to head the units set to come into this self-declared independent province. Troops of some African nation are expected to join the force.

Tshombe, somewhat vague on the matter, said he would not be shocked if the UN forces do arrive, although he had already begun drafting men to oppose them if necessary.

TALES DELAYED

Bunche and Tshombe sent a message to UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld, now in the Congo capital of Leopoldville, asking him about a Security Council session on Katanga. Talks were suspended until Hammarskjöld replies, possibly today.

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) —Two Canadian medical teams moved into Coquilhatville Thursday to help maintain health services in the town.

The Congolese government yesterday ordered Belgian ambassador Jean van den Bosch to get out before Monday and renounced "for the time being" all economic and technical aid from Belgium.

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba Thursday called on Africans and their friends to "wage a final battle against colonialism."

Polaris Flies Farthest Yet

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) —The U.S. navy successfully fired a Polaris missile 1,300 miles Thursday, the farthest yet travelled by this submarine rocket.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

The two little brothers are much different from one another in temperament. The older boy with the green eyes rushes into new things and expects to do them exactly right, with no mistakes, on his first attempt.

If he fails, he pouts and slams objects down, and goes away in a rage.

His small, brown-eyed brother stops and thinks deeply before he tackles any task. You can almost hear the wheels turning.

Then he goes about the task slowly and carefully. If he makes a mistake, it doesn't ruffle him.

"Yes, it's wrong," he says calmly, and sets about trying to do it right.

In the older boy I can see a kind of small caricature of myself, like a reflection in a fun-house mirror.

Picture of Myself

The younger boy gives me a picture of myself as I would have liked to be, cool and deliberate, seldom allowing emotions to fog the mind.

However, the younger boy does slip sometimes, and loses his temper. I'm glad he does. If he always preserved that unearthly calm, I would be worried in case I had been chosen to have a small saint billeted in my house.

And when the smaller one does lose his temper, he makes a job of it. He goes berserk.

"I won't do it," he snaps.

"I'll break it all up, then. I'll throw it down."

As I raise my hand with a stick to administer a wallop,

I catch the brown eyes turned up toward me, blazing with defiance. Even in moments of rebellion the little fiend has a charm about him that almost persuades me to let him off.

Goes Away Howling

But it doesn't work. Whom? Whom? The little wretch goes away howling. In a few minutes, however, he will have forgotten the whole thing.

His green-eyed brother, in the same position, would stubbornly carry the grudge all day.

Even when he is in the right, the older boy has a trick of nagging and irritating people. But with the young one, it is exactly the reverse. Even when he is in the wrong he draws sympathy.

For the older boy, life is going to be a long, hard fight all the way. But the younger one is certain to charm his way through. That's the unfair way that nature treats some of us.

Butchart Concert

Superb Voice Wins Gardens' Audience

By BERT BINNY

The charming personality and outstanding voice of Swedish mezzo-soprano Kerstin Meyer captured the hearts and rapt attention of a large audience at Butchart Gardens last night.

From her very first entry there was no doubt of the complete success of the third and final outdoor symphony concert of the summer season.

SUPERB VOICE

Miss Meyer, always in complete and sensitive control of her superb voice as well as of her material, sang two arias from Bizet's "Carmen" in which she is to star at the "Met" this fall.

Also on her program were Greig's famous "Ich liebe dich" and an aria, "Che faro," from Gluck's "Orpheus and Eurydice," in which she sang "Orpheus" at the 1959 Vancouver Festival.

ALTO RHAPSODY

Then, assisted by the Victoria Meistersingers under director Ted Boulden, Miss Meyer was heard to supreme advantage in Brahms' lovely "Alto Rhapsody."

The orchestra filled the gardens with enrapturing sound when they played Beethoven's "Pastoral" symphony and Rossini's "overture to 'La Gazza Lutra'."

RODEO ITEMS

There were also two items from Aaron Copland's "Rodeo," "Saturday Night Waltz" and "Corral Nocturne."

These gave most satisfying glimpses of American folk music and made a suitable and delightful bridge between the classics of Beethoven and Rossini and the gay melodies of Rodgers and Hammerstein's "The King and I" and Cole Porter's "Kiss Me Kate."

Open House Points Up Flying Boom

An open house and fly-in, to emphasize the growing interest in aviation in this part of the world, will be held Sunday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Victoria Flying Services, Patricia Bay.

The day will start with a breakfast of ham and eggs, hotcakes and coffee.

More than 50 aircraft will be on display—those belonging to Victoria Flying Services, privately-owned craft and visitors' planes and perhaps some from the services. During the day 12 free rides will be raffled off.

Interest in flying has increased so much in the last few years, says charter pilot Bill Cove, that now there are 32 planes with 41 owners (joint ownership is growing in popularity) in this area.

'Socreds Began Smear Cry'

Six Greater Victoria provincial election candidates last night took strong exception to Highways Minister Gagliardi's prediction that B.C. is headed for a "dirty campaign."

"This is a surprising statement for a minister of the Crown to make," said Victoria Liberal candidate Forrest L. Shaw.

"If anyone make it into a dirty campaign Mr. Gagliardi's the boy to do it—he's a past master at it."

Mr. Gagliardi made the "dirty campaign" prediction at a Honey Social Credit convention which renominated Labor Minister Wicks as the party's standard-bearer for Dewdney.

Mr. Shaw said the government is "thin-skinned" in the matter of criticism and recalled that it was Social Credit which introduced the word "smear" into B.C. politics.

"When anybody criticizes them they just cry 'smear.' They don't seem to realize that the criticism is on behalf of the public," Mr. Shaw said.

Reaction of Victoria CCF candidate Mrs. May Campbell was similar.

Crawford Funeral Set Today

Mrs. Ethel Crawford, 1143 Pandora, daughter of a pioneer minister, Rev. Charles Ladner, who built the first Methodist church in Kamloops in 1886, died yesterday in Royal Jubilee Hospital, after a lengthy illness.

She was born in St. John's, Newfoundland, went to Kamloops as a child and moved to Victoria in 1932. Her husband, Matthew Fulton Crawford, who died in 1954, a locomotive engineer for the CPR, was the last living person who was present at the driving of the last spike for the CPR in Craigellachie, near Revelstoke.

Surviving are a daughter, Miss Julie Crawford, at home; one sister, Mrs. J. A. MacKay, Vancouver; and nieces and nephews.

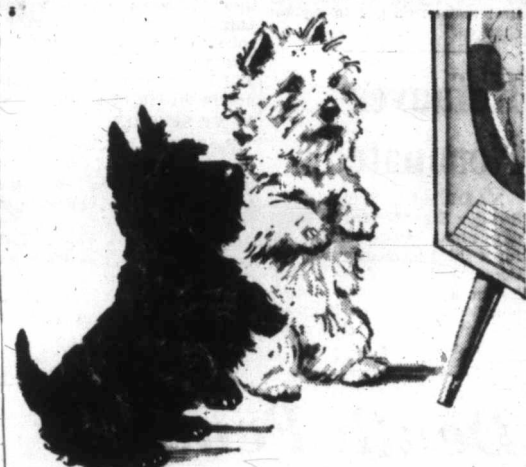

Funeral services will be held today at McCall's funeral home. Burial will be in the family plot at Kamloops Aug. 8.

City Opponents Attack 'Dirty Campaign' Guess

"This will be my sixth election campaign and I have never yet indulged in what Mr. Gagliardi calls a 'dirty campaign'... but seeing who is making the statement I would not be a bit surprised if that's the kind of campaign he is going to have himself," she said indignantly.

"I think it's typical of the kind of thing Mr. Gagliardi is in the habit of saying," said Oak Bay Conservative candidate James A. A. George.

"For the past seven years we've had so many half-truths and untruths and we've made no protest. Our children are growing up and watching their parents accept this sort of thing without doing anything about it and I think that if we are going to set them any kind of an example we must put politics on a much higher plane," he declared.

Said Victoria Liberal MLA George Gregory, "If that's the way Mr. Gagliardi feels about it then I suppose that's the kind of campaign he's going to run."

He said there hasn't been a "dirty" political campaign in B.C. for many years.

Saanich CCF candidate Patrick Thomas said he did not believe the prediction "is fair comment at all."

"If there is any mud-slinging in the campaign then the public will see it and will know they won't need Mr. Gagliardi to point it out for them."

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, Victoria Liberal candidate, said:

has made this prediction makes plans for his own campaign appear suspect."

Socreds Will Win City Voters Think

Arthur Casson, 9551 Fourth Street, Sidney: Social Credit will gain by about 10 per cent. They've done a good job in some respects but B.C. needs another party to represent working people.

Alan Griffin, 1649 Edgeware: Social Credit will gain about seven seats — they're doing good work.

Alex Millar, 781 Ralph: They'll lose from four to six seats. I like the way they've paid off the debts but they've given too much to the Peace River development. The Liberals will gain.

SOME GOOD

Mrs. Allen Pike, 4530 Vanfreight: Social Credit will win but lose about seven seats. They've done some good, particularly to roads, but they overrate themselves. The CCF will gain.

Thomas MacKenzie, 605 Newport: Social Credit will lose about six seats. After four years the party has learned the combination to the safe — another party will do B.C. more good. CCF, Liberals and Conservatives will gain.

Milton Stubbs, 1308 Merritt: Social Credit will gain about six seats. They've made some advancement.

Mrs. James Lomas, 1893 Hollywood Crescent: The government will gain seats. The Social Credit party is very progressive.

ABOUT FIVE

Mrs. John Stone, 1075 Victoria: Social Credit will gain about five seats.

N. A. McLeod, 1331 Hampshire: The government will hold its own. It has done more for B.C. since it came to power than any other government in the previous 10 years.

H. D. Cluff, 1643 Richardson: The Socreds will win but will lose a few seats. They've done a lot of good but they are getting away with a lot that the people don't know about.

Arthur Catt, 4418 Torquay: Social Credit could have done a lot more things for the general public. They'll lose about four seats and the Liberals will gain.

Frank Reed, 3250 Linwood: B.C. would be better off with the Liberals in, but Social Credit will only lose about four seats.

Mrs. T. S. Roberts, 1307 Pembroke: The government will lose some seats and the Liberals will gain.

Walter Thatcher, 3044 Oakdown: Social Credit will stay the same. They've done no more than they had to.

George Thomas, 350 Dallas: The government will gain a few seats and win strength from the Liberals.

Edward Anderson, 3054 Cedar Hill: Social Credit will gain about five seats and take strength from the Liberals.

Jack Morris, 736 Caledonia: The government will gain one seat and take strength from Conservatives.

W. D. Philips, 1407 Fort: The government will gain two to three seats. They've done a lot of good work and got down to brass tacks.

Liberals In Senate Give Way

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's contentious anti-combines amendments received final Senate approval Thursday after Liberals failed to translate objections into a "no" vote.

The predominantly Liberal Senate approved the amendments without a recorded vote after its banking and commerce committee rejected two Liberal motions to eliminate controversial sections dealing with loss-leader selling and defences against combining.

Negro Not Much Better Off

Canada Biased, Too

NEW YORK (CP)—After taking a cross-country look at the "racial sophistication" of Canadians, a U.S. reporter concludes Canada has nothing to be smug about.

Carl Rowan, reporter for the Minneapolis Tribune, says in Ebony, a national U.S. magazine aimed at the Negro, that the Negro is probably better off in Canada—but not by as much as Canadians like to think.

He quotes Negro halfback Rollie Miles of Edmonton Eskimos as saying: "You don't have to be a football hero to avoid discrimination in Canada—but it sure helps."

Miles told Rowan the "wave of indignation that swells up when a bigot is picking on me becomes merely a trickle where the ordinary Negro is concerned."

Miles blames "U.S. influence" for some of Canada's racial troubles. A similar view was held by Theodore King of Calgary, credit manager for a farm machinery company and leader of the Alberta Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

King said U.S. oil men from the Deep South who have expanded in Calgary use their influence to deprive Negroes of equality. U.S. influence is obvious in the worst areas of discrimination in Canada, he said.

But Rowan questions to what extent racial prejudice can be attributed to Americans. He hits hard particularly at Canada's immigration laws:

"... Canada makes little if any effort to hide the fact that while more people are being sought zealously, efforts are made to curb the number of Negroes and Asians who enter the country."

Away From Unity

ON October 5 white South African voters will decide whether their country becomes a republic or remains a Dominion with the same status as Canada, Australia and New Zealand. It is recognized that the Union will not gain any greater independence if it becomes a republic, neither will it lose any of the present privileges it enjoys as a member of the Commonwealth.

If the decision to change is made it will fall into the same category as India, Pakistan and Ghana—dependent republics but members of the Commonwealth.

The main, in fact only, reason for forcing this issue at the present time is simply to cut the last remaining traditional ties with the United Kingdom, ties which have irked the die-hard and unforgiving Afrikaner since the Boer war. Queen Elizabeth II, who is not only Queen of the United Kingdom but also Queen of the Dominions, will no longer be Queen of South Africa if the nation becomes a republic.

It is this issue alone that will send 1,500,000 South African voters to the polls to decide for the remaining 13,500,000 inhabitants which course their country shall follow.

Let no one think, however, that this is anything but a vital issue in the Union. Certain Afrikaner elements, led by the present extremist Nationalist Government, have little love for their fellow South African of British stock.

A staunch, hardy and proud race, the Afrikaner guards his self-set rights jealously. He will go to amazing lengths to retain control of his country by removing from it any sign of the hand of any other nation. Toward this end he has already imposed his own language, Afrikaans, on the population, removed the time-honored OHMS stamp from official letters, and hauled down the Union Jack on all government buildings.

By continually doing this type of thing and always with a great show of ceremony, he has succeeded in estranging large sections of the British-descended population and created yet another racial division in a country already hopelessly divided against itself.

In all fairness it should be stated that not all Afrikaners support these policies. Many of them have formed solid personal and political links with their English-speaking fellow countrymen. Field Marshal Jan Smuts was a leader of this group which eventually formed itself into the United party, now the official opposition.

He and his followers saw the futility and the danger of continuing the enmity between the two major white races at a time when the Union needed all its wits and resources to find a way out of its dilemma.

A breakaway from traditional bonds—called subservience to a foreign Queen by the Boer extremists—will be keenly felt not only by the English-speaking South Africans who make up 45 per cent of the total white population, but by the 9,600,000 Bantu, 450,000 Asiatics and 1,360,000 Coloreds who have always felt some kind of moral security under the sign of the Crown.

The nation will be even further split now. A strange position for a country whose motto, oddly enough, is "Union Is Strength."

It Could Be Awkward

SENATOR ROEBUCK is in favor of working with the UN to restore order in the Congo, but averse to Canadian troops spending some years there. A nation cannot work with the UN in an emergency unless it participates, and all UN member states are pledged to answer a call for troops from the Security Council. Canadian troops overseas, in any case, function in relays and are not required to spend too much time abroad.

The senator does raise an interesting point however when he wonders if Canada is setting a precedent "to send troops in the future to all places where government are being overthrown by rebellion." The precedent is the UN's and it could lead to some anomalous situations.

The UN answered Congolese Premier Lumumba's appeal for help because of the ferment that exists in Africa today. Intervention is a delicate decision. The borderline between internal dissension and a threat to world peace is not clear, as some of the major UN powers have illustrated when they objected even to UN discussion of their affairs.

Authority for intervention by the UN rests in the Charter, when the Security Council deems international peace and security to be threatened. In the instance of the Congo the action taken was swift and timely, and mainly on the vigorous initiative of the secretary-general, Mr. Dag Hammarskjöld. It saved the day, for repercussions might have followed in other African states and a major part of the world embroiled.

Election Date Well Chosen

PREMIER BENNETT'S long-awaited announcement of the date of the next provincial general election is devoid of the element of surprise. It has been obvious for some time that there would be an election in the coming autumn.

In the choice of Monday, Sept. 12, for polling day the premier appears to have studied the convenience of all concerned, besides encouraging a large vote. By then the summer and Labor Day holidays will be over, and normal routine will have been restored for the electors, except those who take late vacations.

Whether or not the public can be persuaded to attend political meetings in the heat of August evenings remains to be seen; but of recent years political meetings in this province have not been noted for high attendances anyhow.

Interpreting the News

Youth in the Saddle

By DAVID ROWNTREE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NO matter who wins the presidential election in November, the United States has the opportunity beginning next year to recapture some of its lost prestige on the world stage.

For whether Richard Nixon, 47, or John Kennedy, 43, is elected, either will be the youngest leader of world prominence.

By selecting Vice-President Nixon, the Republicans seemed to destroy one of their repeated arguments against Senator Kennedy—that the Democrats' man is too young and inexperienced to be entrusted with the presidency.

Some of the heads of government with which one of these young men will be dealing are old enough to be their fathers.

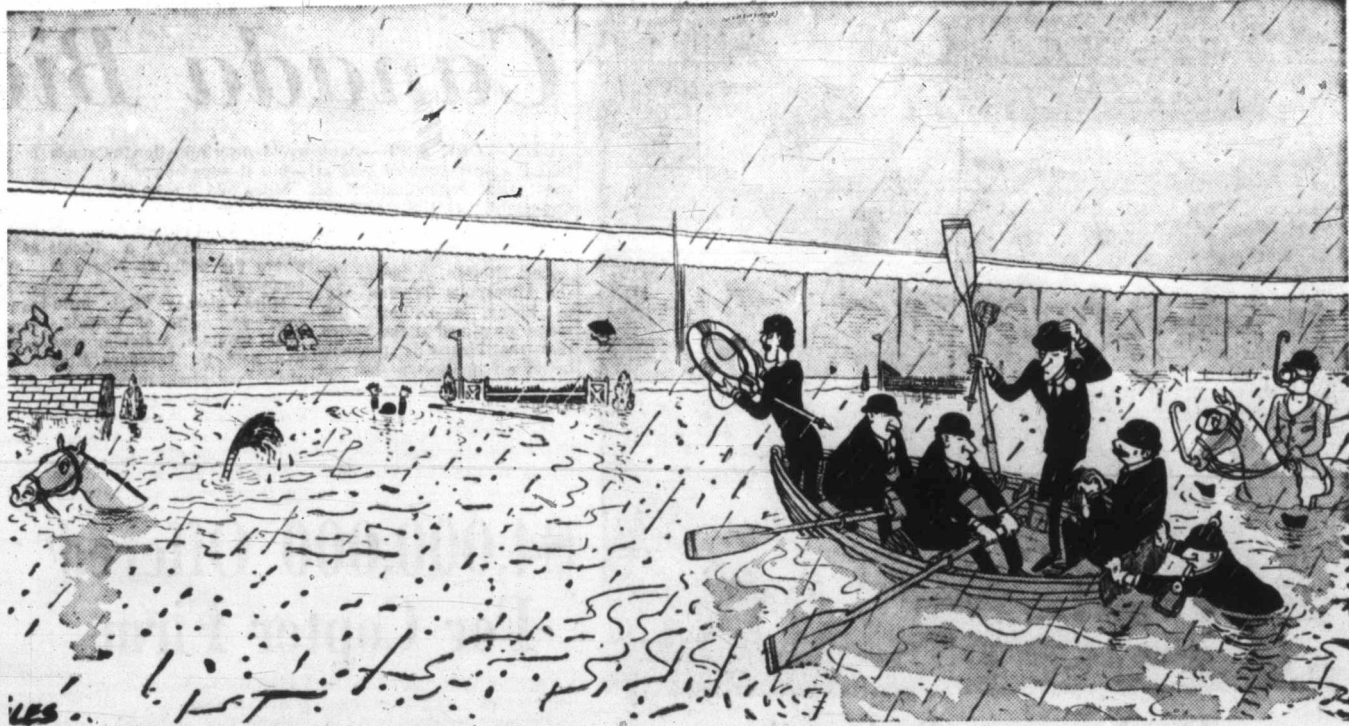

Every one of the world's chief statesmen has passed the age when in the business world he would have had to retire.

Premier Khrushchev and Prime Minister Macmillan are the youngest at 66. Mao Tse-tung of Communist China is 67. Both Presidents Eisenhower and de Gaulle are 69. Prime Minister Nehru is 71 and Chancellor Adenauer, the iron man of them all, 84.

Even among the middle and smaller powers, the heads of government are not young men. For example, Prime Minister Diefenbaker is nearly 65, Prime Minister Menzies of Australia is 68 and Prime Minister Nash of New Zealand, 78.

There may be something to be said for the view that a young man in Washington will better appreciate the problems of equally young leaders in Africa, Asia and Latin America than would an old man. And it is on those three continents that East-West competition is becoming more intense.

"To the boats, gentlemen. Mrs. Martingale Smith has muffed her fence and gone down for the second time."

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

A NEWS item I came across recently told of the death of Walter Lindrum, OBE, and as is the wont of such things the past rose up to haunt me. Mr. Lindrum, you see, was a billiards player, and ever since I tinkered with the ivory balls, albeit they were not ivory, my conscience has troubled me. It was alleged in my early days that proficiency at billiards was evidence of a mispent youth, so you can see how heavy the burden has been.

The burden has been lightened only by remembrance that proficiency may be a relative term. The highest break yours truly ever made, he thinks, was 41, whereas Walter Lindrum, by general consent the greatest of all the masters of this game, ran up a record 4,137 break. The only right I could have to be in his company would be to pay my admission and watch him from a gallery seat.

I never did see this Australian wonder at the green table, but I can remember one or two of his predecessors, also from Australia. This country breeds billiards players as it does cricketers, tennis players and swimmers. George Gray I faintly recall, whose diabolical skill at going in off the red baffled his opponents and bored the spectators. He was as monotonous at billiards as Bradman often was at the wicket. After Gray came Melbourne Inman, a workmanlike expert who defeated with ease much more artistic performers. As with other games the score is not everything.

We are talking, of course, about English billiards, which I understand is not so popular nowadays as pool. The latter I should think to be much less intriguing to play, at least so I found it although it is years since I found a cue in hand. Quite possibly I may never hold another. The dubiety I expressed about proficiency, also, derives from the days when pool halls—a generic term for billiards palaces—were considered by some of the unco guid to be dens of iniquity.

Such was not necessarily the case; at least I comfort myself by so affirming in order to offset my latent guilty feelings. Happily we are now in a more enlightened age and some fine Victorians are currently proficient at the art of potting the red or nursing the cannons. I would hesitate to suggest that the inhibition which has haunted me could have any reference to them. Their social standing, I feel sure, is impeccable.

It cannot be said that Mr. Lindrum mispent either his youth, or his life, since he got to the top of his tree. A champion lives on a plane of his own, and, apparently, the like of this Australian had never been known before. He could score in all departments of the game and at amazing speed. It may interest local billiards players to learn that once in demonstration he played the balls two and a half times round the table in a run of 529 consecutive cannons. By contrast he could make a four-figure break with only an occasional short run of cannons.

Three aspects are reported of him which reflect the well-spentness of his life. He was a modest man who never quibbled at a decision, a rare virtue. He practiced constantly to keep his skill alive, which lesser men do not always do. And after he retired from competitive play he used his fame and proficiency in the cause of public charity.

Billiards seems to have had in Walter Lindrum an exponent par excellence, which somehow restores my faith in my teenhood.

Letter from London

The Evasive Faversham Report

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

THE Faversham report on artificial insemination in human beings is well on the way to creating an atmosphere as controversial as that created by the Wolfenden report on homosexuality.

Both are concerned with unnatural practices, but whereas the Wolfenden report received a certain amount of approval from church leaders, there is no indication of ecclesiastical support for Lord Faversham's committee.

The church attitude to homosexuality is based on Sir John Wolfenden's proviso that it should not involve any element of seduction, to which the Archbishop of Canterbury added the argument that whilst it is a sin it is not a crime. Artificial insemination involves countless other problems and there are many fewer people prepared to argue that it should not be a crime. Even the committee is, at times, strangely inconclusive and illogical.

The Faversham report does argue that artificial insemination is undesirable; that it should be discouraged, but that it should not be made illegal, mainly because the committee feels that with only an average of 100 births by this method every year it does not present a major sociological problem and that to make it illegal might put its practice into undesirable hands.

The report indicates that probably fewer than 20 doctors have practised the techniques of artificial insemination and probably not more than three are actively engaged in the practice. It indicates that the general attitude among 50,000 medical practitioners in the United Kingdom is that it is not desirable. Indeed several doctors have informed me that they think that shows an even graver lack of responsibility amongst the doctors practising the technique than among the donors prepared to have theoretically unlimited numbers of illegitimate children by unknown women.

The moral implications are profound, and psychological reactions are likely to be acute both with the "parents" and the child.

It involves, for example, either a false declaration of parenthood or a declaration of illegitimacy. The doctors indulging in the practice receive substantial fees, for it is not a treatment provided by the national health service; and for what one of these doctors calls the safeguarding of all concerned no records at all are kept. This obviously increases the risk of inter-marriage between half-brothers and half-sisters, especially as the doctors are practising within a limited area, and the children would obviously have inherited traits of sympathy.

The legal implications, of course, are frightening should, by some mischance, the donor become aware of the identity of the recipient.

The attitude of the committee is fundamentally evasive. It argues that because there are only 100 artificially inseminated human births in Britain in a year, compared with 35,000 illegitimate births, there is no grave sociological problem but the members agree that should the practice increase it may be necessary to stop it by law.

It would surely be as sensible to argue that because there are only 300 murders a year the police should not bother to try to bring the murderers to justice. The injustice to the children does not seem to be acknowledged because there are so few of them, a sad commentary upon the attitude of a majority to a defenceless minority.

The safeguard of society is, of course, the natural abhorrence of most men and women to all the inferences of artificial insemination as an unnatural practice. It is possible that the British Medical Association may advise doctors to regard the practice as unethical, and if the General Medical Council adopted the same position it would be binding on all doctors, though obviously detection would be difficult. It would, however, be no more difficult than proving a doctor's adultery with a patient, which is not a legal offence but is an ethical offence rendering the offender liable to be struck off the role.

The Faversham report has been coldly received, and while it will justify the government in not taking legislative action, it has done nothing to allay fears that the practice may extend. The fact that probably 1,000 or more such children have been born in the United Kingdom since the end of the war is sufficiently significant to alarm many people.

What will never be known is the psychological effect on the children concerned; the effect if unhealthy traits develop in the child; the attitude of the nominal father to a child he knows is not his own, and the mother whose guilt complex will be accentuated if undesirable qualities develop in the child.

The doctors guarantee no more than physical health in the donor. His mental health must obviously be suspect and the defects may be transmitted to the child. We would, perhaps, be on safer ground if records were kept and if cases could be followed through.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

SOME people go through far worse storms than other people, even though it is the same storm. In fact you can be sitting on the same veranda, and her storm is far worse than yours.

I speak of a lady, of course. She is one of my distaff relatives. And she hates thunderstorms. To her, they are personal. No one else is experiencing anything like the storm she is in.

As the lightning flashes, and strikes down magnificently, and as the thunder splits, crashes and rolls across the heavens, you try to explain to her that there is no difference whatever between what she sees and hears, and what you see and hear. Therefore, she can claim no priority over you in the matter of storms.

"You come over," she says, "and sit at my end of the veranda, and you'll see. It's far worse over here."

It is true that life hands out different situations and trials to different people. But in the main, if you sit back and think about it, life is an experience pretty much the same for everybody. It is in our attitude to it that the chief differences seem to appear.

Lung Cancer

Is Personality the Clue?

(From The BBC London Letter)

CAN there be any connection between the personality of the smoker and lung cancer? The possibility was raised in a report on the latest research carried out by Mass Observation Limited on behalf of the tobacco manufacturers, which Paul Vaughan spoke about in a recent broadcast in the BBC General Overseas Service.

The conclusion that cancer of the lung could be caused by smoking was based, Vaughan said, on statistical evidence that more smokers got lung cancer than non-smokers. But some medical writers had criticized the argument, pointing out that for instance it made no difference whether a smoker inhaled or not, and that pipe smokers did not get lung cancer as often as cigarette smokers; whereas if tobacco was the culprit there would be an equal risk. It had been put forward that there might be a common, as yet unrecognized, cause for both lung cancer and smoking, and it was now suggested that this might be the personality of the smoker.

What type is the smoker? "The Mass Observation survey has established certain things about him," said Vaughan. "It was done by taking a statistical sample including comparable numbers of smokers and non-smokers, who were all asked various questions to elicit clues as to their personality type. Questions such as: 'Do you get excited when you argue?' 'Are you inclined to be moody?' 'Does your mind wander when you are trying to concentrate?'

"It emerged from the answers that 'genotypic personality differences' are related to smoking habits. The results show that extroverts are heavier smokers than introverts; they also show, to some extent, that non-smokers are more rigid about their own and other people's habits than smokers are."

The figures, Vaughan emphasized, did not prove that smoking was not a cause of lung cancer. But if investigations into the personality of cancer patients showed that as a group they were more extroverted than a carefully chosen control group, then the theory that lung cancer and smoking were both signs of a common condition would receive powerful support.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

"It's awfully late!" remarked Wayne to his friend after a long session at the club. "What will you say to your wife?"

"Oh, not much, you know," was the reply. "Good morning, dear, or something of that sort. She'll say the rest."

It was the school's annual parents' night and the program included several vocal numbers by the class, one of which was a rather high-pitched version of "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

As the young voices wavered through the song, a woman in the audience began to cry softly. The spectator next to her leaned over and whispered, "You must be Irish."

"Oh, no," sobbed the woman, "I'm the music teacher."

Father criticized the sermon, mother didn't like the organist, and their daughter thought the choir terrible.

With schoolboy instinct for fair play, the son chipped in with:

"Well, I thought it was a pretty good show for five cents."

Letters to the Editor

Slim Chance

In reply to the comments of Percy Triggs (Colonist, Aug. 3) about my seeming sneer at investors, he is right: I do seem to. However, the letter was directed at the revenue department or the Colonist for implying that investors were wage-earners.

He says profits are rewards for risks. Workers wouldn't mind the "risk" if they had the capital to invest. The case of the Nebraska immigrant is an exception to the rule, aside from the fact that the full circumstances of his income may not have been given, plus the fact that $125 per month was away above average wages in 1937.

"The brains and skill" referred to by Mr. Triggs is a form of gambling (stock exchange) and is far removed from the effortless income that makes up the majority of interest, dividends and profit. Every worker in Canada has a chance to become a capitalist. He also has a chance of being struck by lightning.

H. Sandham Graves

My warm congratulations on your well-written and sincere editorial on the subject of the retirement of Mr. H. Sandham Graves. I can wholeheartedly endorse all your kind and complimentary references.

Over 30 years of association and observation have amply demonstrated to me his sterling character, strong convictions, fine spirit, and outstanding ability; and I recognize and admire his approachableness and understanding, appreciation of high responsibility, devotion to duty, and all-round wholesomeness. These, with other factors too numerous to list here, form a composite presenting in him a real gentleman and good citizen altogether worthy of the opportunity he has had for so long to bring his views and judgment to bear upon the thinking of our citizens and community.

Mr. Graves richly deserves, and I pray he may be long spared to enjoy, the best of health and every enjoyment and satisfaction in his retirement.

Place for Boys' Club Youth Groups Agree

A special committee of representatives of groups interested in youth work decided unanimously yesterday that there is a place in Victoria for a branch of the Boys' Clubs of Canada.

The organization recently applied for a three-year lease of the old Yates Street firehall at $1 a year, and city council voted to have the special committee look into the need for a Boys' Club before making a decision.

Representatives of the Community Chest, Family and Roman Catholic Church, juvenile court and Community Welfare Council were at yesterday's meeting.

Chairman Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson said afterward the delegates were "unanimous that the Boys' Club would do a good service for boys of the city, in co-operation with existing clubs and societies."

Young Victorian Rides to Victory

Jean Dunbar, 16-year-old Victoria horsewoman, scored well with her two horses in recent competitions at the Maple Ridge Equitation Centre at Haney.

A member of the Victoria Riding Academy, she is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dunbar, 1007 Joan Crescent. Her two jumping horses are Seven-Up and Fen's Folly.

The event was open to any horse which has not won a first, second or third ribbon in any official combined training contest in Canada or the U.S.

The test was in three sections—dressage, cross country and stadium jumping. Seven-Up was first in the three-way test and was awarded the Woodward Perpetual Trophy.

Chief Wulley's Smile Masks Great Ability

Kilted Police Leader Jokes Through City

By ERITH M. SMITH

"Welcome to God's country!" said the chief constable. "Then they must have shifted Scotland," replied the chief constable.

The scene was the seaplane float in Victoria's Inner Harbor yesterday afternoon, as this city's Chief Constable John Blackstock greeted Chief Constable William — better known as Wulley — Merrilees of the Lothians and Peebles Constabulary.

BRIEF VISIT

The Scottish police chief, whose territory includes the city of Edinburgh, looked not one inch the part as he stepped ashore from a float plane that had brought him from Vancouver for a brief visit.

Chief Constable Merrilees, well under six feet tall, wore a kilt of ancient-dress MacDonald tartan, a sporran and a jacket of good Scottish tweed.

CALLING CARDS

He proved the sporran is no mere decoration. From it he produced his calling cards ("I'm Scottish, but this much I'll give you").

His stature bothers him no whit. When Harold Merrilees (no relation, as far as they know) who accompanied him from Vancouver, asked for a picture of the two chiefs together, the Scot looked up at Chief Blackstock, who stands six feet, one inch, and said: "Then he'd better pick me up."

Only his present rank and hints dropped by people who know of his police exploits in Scotland give an indication of the shrewd mind and great ability of the Edinburgh police officer.

Chief Constable Merrilees is noted also for his great interest in crippled children, which led to his visit to this continent. When film star Roy Rogers and his wife, Dale Evans, visited Scotland they found a common bond with Chief Merrilees in this interest in disabled youngsters, one of which the Rogers adopted.

Out of this friendship, Chief Constable Merrilees was invited to Los Angeles to dedicate the Harry Lauder Room in the Tam o' Shanter Inn, where he met the Rogers again.

HAD TO SEE

For years the chief and his near-namesake in Vancouver had corresponded, and the latter persuaded the Scot he couldn't possibly return home without visiting B.C.

"And I've had a glorious time," said the chief. "It's a beautiful country."

CITY TOUR

He called on Mayor Scurrah and had time to look at the city and the legislative buildings.

Today he returns to Scotland by jet, then is off to London for a major police conference on crime and juvenile delinquency.

Friendly, obliging Police Chief Wulley Merrilees of Edinburgh helps out change-shy photographer who couldn't feed a parking meter after parking his car. —(Colonist photo).

Slight Noise Unheeded

Brazen Thief Gets $300

A brazen burglar who crept into a lighted bedroom early yesterday got away with $300 in cash as the occupants of the house failed to heed the slight noise he made in time to catch him.

Mrs. H. Wessel, 1554 Pembroke, told police she had gone to bed at 12:30 a.m., leaving a light on a small bedside table on which was her purse, containing the money and personal papers.

She heard a slight noise but, thinking it was her husband, paid no attention.

Then she heard the venetian blind move and looked up in time to see a leg disappear out the window. Her purse was gone.

She ran out to call her husband, who hurried outside but too late to see anyone. He said he also heard the noise, been left up a few inches and but had ignored it. The bedroom window had permit entry to the room.

You'll find just such a situation in Exodus. Barely six weeks out of Egypt, Moses had a near-rebellion on his hands through the lack of this pungent bulb. Manna was all very well, but without onions—and leeks—the children of Israel were all for returning to Egypt and slavery.

To avoid a personal onion shortage, the crop needs very careful finishing. From now on, no fertilizer should be given, and no more water than falls naturally as rain. The bulbs are as big as they will ever be, and the need now is for ripening and hardening.

It isn't necessary to wait until the tops are entirely dead before lifting the crop. This can be done when the foliage is more yellow than green, but don't pull up the bulbs by the scruff of the neck, as this tends to crack the protective outer skin. Instead, ease them out of the ground

Don't cut off the roots and tops just yet, but expose the lifted plants to dry conditions and lots of sun, turning them occasionally so the whole of the bulb gets a good baking. Ripening is completed when the tops and roots crumble away when rubbed, and at this stage the crop can be bagged in netting sacks and stored in a dry and not too cool place.

By Samuel Chotzinoff

(While John Crosby is on vacation his column will be written by guests, today producer Samuel Chaitinoff.)

Right away we were scared by the proximity of the television set in the home. At such close range people on the screen had to look good. That meant that if by some chance a woman with a voice and weight (250 pounds) of a Tetrizzini desired to appear in our operas we would be obliged to turn her down.

For the same reason we would have to turn down a Caruso, unless he agreed to go on a diet.

To formulate a concept is one thing; to put it into effect is quite another. We listened to chunky girls who had glorious voices and to slim beauties who had hardly any. We dismissed fat tenors with ringing high tones and slender ones who sounded like castrati.

We began timidly with 15-minute segments of popular operas, and luck was with us, for we auditioned and accepted a slim youth with a wonderful voice called Mario Lanza. Unaware of his future success (and increased poundage) the unknown young man sang Rodolfo at Mimi's death scene with a poignancy that was, vocally histrionically, absolutely true. Another unknown youth, George London, sang and acted Colline with equal artistry. People understood the English text and wrote in to tell us of their pleasure.

Whatever snobbery and prejudice we found against opera in English came from the country's musical intelligentsia. "How do you propose to translate 'Lo tango' into our brutal and unsingable language?" a prominent lady intelligencist asked me. And when I said, "What's the matter with 'I love you'?" I was rewarded with a horse-laugh.

"Don't you think," I said to a music-lover seated next to me, "that in a comedy the audience should understand what the characters in the opera are saying?" The reply was a stern "I certainly don't." Well, I certainly do. Even in a tragedy I will admit that complete ignorance of the text is better than the dreadful, ancient translations sold in the lobbies of opera houses.

But when Sharpless asks Madame Butterfly how old she is—and she replies, "Fifteen, exactly. I'm getting on," you cannot savor the girl's innocent, pathetic answer unless you understand Italian.

Now that the NBC-TV Opera is firmly established, I must confess to deception we once played on our audience's purse. We were putting on "Salome," and we found a baritone with the sex appeal of a Baptist must have to make credible Salome's passion for him. So we engaged a slim, irresistible young TV actor (he has since risen to TV stardom) to play the part, while a deep-voiced baritone sang his music into a boom boom stage. I believe that for the first time an audience understood why Salome felt and behaved the way she did. The actor by the way was John Cullum.

But this happened years ago. Since then we have had no difficulty finding personable singing actors. "Necessity, invention's mother" had begun to operate. The next generation of opera singers will be both comely and musical.

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Two weeks practice pounding on the bongo drums, keen anticipation of scoring a big audience hit with the sticks—then one word from the director and everything down the drain! James Mason was fit for a strait-jacket.

Julie Newmar and Mr. Mason arrived on the set of "The Marriage-Go-Round" to rehearse a bit in which she, in form-clinging jersey, lures him into a red-hot cha-cha, to be climaxed by James seizing the bongo outfit and beating out a furious beat. But to the pair's astonishment, director Walter Lang ordered: "I want this to play natural-like. We'll shoot without a rehearsal—and cut the bongo bit."

Lang was adamant, but much to the surprise of everyone—except the director—the scene was okayed on the first try.

"Good, good," smiled Lang tolerantly. "That's exactly what I wanted you to do."

The rainmakers were at it with blinding cloudbursts on "The Facts of Life" sound stage, drenching Lucille Ball and Bob Hope in an open car whose automatic top went haywire, according to plan, on the open road.

Whirling overhead sprays repeatedly soaked the two performers from head to foot as director Melvin Frank sought perfection.

Finally, after a dozen takes, and with no end in sight, Hope turned to Frank; and jokingly accused him of fiendishly inventing the scene for his players' discomfort. Whereupon Frank quipped, "Stop grouching, Hope; anybody knows a downpour like this is a Godsend to the farmers."

Grandma Moses 100 Soon

MANCHESTER, Vt. (UPI) —This Vermont community, quaint as a Grandma Moses Christmas card, will pay birthday tribute to her Saturday to pay homage to Grandma Moses whose paintings typify New England. Many of her works have been reproduced on Christmas cards.

In a sense, artists and art lovers from these parts will speak for the art world in honoring the white-haired lady who will be 100 Sept. 7.

Grandma Moses—less well known as Mrs. Anna Mary Robertson Moses—will accept the tribute in person if she is able to make the 45-minute automobile journey from her son's home at Hoosick Falls, N.Y.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

'About 650 persons are expected to fill the Southern Vermont art centre to capacity

Grandma Moses, who didn't begin "serious" painting until age 77, has many friends in memory, many of her works like "Barn Dance" or "Sugaring Off" are canvas vignettes of a New England countryside rich in heritage and enduring waters.

The celebration Saturday will feature an exhibition of 15 or 20 of her paintings, some dating from 1948. Slides of her other works blended with songs of the past century also will be presented to the theatre audience.

Grandma Moses has accepted her acclaim with Yankee modesty. She frequently turned out canvases as gifts for her neighbors as well as for big commercial fairs.

She seldom painted from natural landscapes but rather from memory. "I just start a picture and add to it as I go," he once commented.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

MONTREAL (CP) — The faithful steam locomotive and its 124 years of service in the development of Canada will have a special remembrance day Sunday Sept. 4.

Canadian National Railways announced Wednesday that its No. 6153, veteran locomotive with 1,000,000 miles of service through depression, war and peace, is being shined up for "the last run of steam."

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful leanness. Note how quickly loat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Future for Cougars Brighter—Decision Today

By JIM TANG

Whether or not Victoria Cougars will remain in the Western Hockey League this season will probably be decided this afternoon. And Memorial Arena manager Joe Dukowski says the chances are that they will.

Jim Piggott, the Saskatoon contractor who owns the Victoria franchise, will arrive in the city about noon and will immediately go into session with the Arena Commission in an effort to work out terms of an agreement.

There appears to be some considerable misunderstanding if not a difference of opinion on the terms as discussed in previous negotiations.

Last Friday during a telephone interview with The Daily Colonist, Piggott stated that his proposal was that he "provide the team at my expense and the commission provide the arena and administration to the point where I broke even. Then the first charge would be for rental of the arena."

He added that "the (the commission) wanted me to modify the plan, and, believe me, I have no plans for modification."

At that point, Victoria's hockey future looked indeed bleak. The implication from Piggott's statements was that if receipts failed to take care of operational costs which did not include arena rental that the commission would be liable for losses.

Inasmuch as this would literally put the city into the business of professional hockey with Piggott in the position of risking nothing with some chance for profit, there was little chance that agreement could be reached on those terms.

However, a new light was thrown on negotiations yesterday when Dukowski explained that at the worst the arena would stand to lose only part of the customary hockey rental and in his opinion had every chance of doing better than usual.

Dukowski acknowledged that negotiations included the plan for first paying off club operational expenses with the commission, presumably through Dukowski, taking an active hand in club administration. But he denied that there had ever been any intention that the commission would be responsible if receipts failed to cover operating costs, and that no arena rental would be forthcoming unless there was a profit.

"If receipts should not meet operating costs—and I think that is not likely, Mr. Piggott will be responsible," Dukowski said.

Under the plan as outlined by Dukowski, club operating costs would include all salaries, taxes, promotion costs, league charges, equipment, training-camp costs and the payment of ticket-sellers, door-men, ushers, policemen, announcers, goal judges, linesmen and referees—plus $100 a game to the arena in lieu of rental.

The last item—the $100—was not included in first discussions.

Dukowski admitted that the $100 was considerably below the normal rental for professional hockey but pointed out that concession profits at hockey games could be added to that total and agreed that hockey acts as a stimulant to use of the ice surface by skaters. And, he repeated, he was certain that terms of the agreement as proposed by the commission would boost the rental.

If there is a profit, Dukowski said, the arena would collect 11 per cent of gross receipts after taxes. And if there is a profit after payment of the rental percentage, the arena and Piggott would split that down the middle.

He admitted, however, that no agreement had yet been reached and that there were still some points on which both the commission and Piggott appeared adamant.

"We should know today," he said. "Time is getting short and if we are to have a hockey club we have to start getting ready for it at once."

Record-Keepers on Overtime

Carin Cone of the United States had two of her world records bettered yesterday as swimmers prepping for the Olympic Games continued to set new marks faster than they can be put into the books.

Lynn Burke, 17-year-old New Yorker, broke the 100-metre record of 1:11.4 and her own pending mark of 1:10.1 with a sensational time of one minute, 10 seconds in U.S. Olympic trials at Detroit.

lowered it by seven-tenths of a second.

Olympic veteran Dawn Fraser anchored the Aussie 400-yard medley relay team to a world record of 4:50.2, 3.8 seconds better than the old mark. Miss Fraser swam the anchor 110-yard freestyle lap after Gergaynia Backet covered the same distance in backstroke. Rosemary Lässig in breaststroke and Jan Andrew in the butterfly.

Mike Troy of Indianapolis broke his own world 200-metre butterfly record at Detroit, swimming the distance in 2:13.2 compared to the accepted mark of 2:16.4.

come to terms with his new club after a one-day holdout. Coaches will also be swapped by the clubs, with Luke Appling joining Dykes at Cleveland and Joe White following Gordon to Detroit.

Bob Rosenberg shot a six-under-par 65 yesterday for a one-stroke lead in the first round of the $30,000 Insurance City Open golf tournament in Wethersfield, Conn. Dick Knight and Don Fairfield were second, one stroke ahead of Doug Ford, Dow Finsterwald and Dave Ragan.

Edinburgh will make application to hold the British Empire Games in 1966 or 1970.

Jack Kent Cooke, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League, said yesterday he would take a 30-year lease on a proposed $8,000,000 city-built sports stadium there, thus guaranteeing that building costs and interest will be paid off.

Light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore became a father for the fourth time yesterday with the birth of a son.

Maurice Richard celebrated his 39th birthday yesterday and said he still doesn't know if he will return for another hockey season with Montreal Canadiens.

Munn Drops Third Match

KANSAS CITY (CP)—Dick Munn of Victoria was eliminated from the United States Golf Association's junior national tournament Thursday, losing his third-round match to Robert Hammer of Sarasota, Fla., 6 and 4.

Munn had defeated Brad Schiefelbusch of Tucson, Ariz., 6 and 4 in the second round.

Soaring Redbirds Now Second

St. Louis Cardinals didn't get any closer to first place yesterday but the rampant Redbirds, who lost 15 of their first 17 games away from home this season, are now the National League runners-up.

Ray Sadecki, a 19-year-old rookie southpaw with the stamp of future greatness, was pitched out of trouble in the first inning at the cost of a single run, retired the next three men after Hank Aaron had opened the ninth with his 29th home run for a 4-2 win over the fading Milwaukee Braves. And Sadecki inserted two timely singles to help his cause.

It was the seventh straight win for the Cardinals, the fourth defeat in a row and the seventh in eight games for the Braves, who not too long ago actually managed to go to the front. Now they are four games out.

Pittsburgh's leading Pirates came out of an unlikely-looking situation with their lead increased by a half game.

They were forced to start George Witt against the sizzling Los Angeles Dodgers, who had big Don Drysdale ready for action. Drysdale had won six in a row and Witt hadn't won a game since Sept. 5, 1958.

But Witt held the Dodgers for six innings with Elroy Face finishing up and the Pirates made good use of seven hits for a 4-1 win.

A San Francisco Giants ended a three-game losing streak with a five-run seventh inning which gave them an 8-7 verdict over Philadelphia's Phillies.

A two-run, pinch-hit triple by Willie McCovey and the hitting and base-running of Willie Mays won it. Mays, who had three hits, kept the inning alive and gave McCovey a chance to hit with a slide into home plate which knocked the ball out of catcher Clay Dalrymple's hands.

Most resounding blow of a baseball day which saw exactly one home run hit in each of the seven games, was delivered by Billy Martin.

The fiery Cincinnati second baseman, thinking that he was being thrown at, clouted pitcher Jim Brewer in the second inning. The right-hand punch broke the Chicago rookie's eye orbit bone, putting him out of action. Martin followed immediately on instructions from the game officials. The Cubs won, 5-3, with Ernie Banks hitting his 30th homer and driving in three runs.

An abbreviated American League schedule saw the idle New York Yankees pick up a half game on the second-place Chicago White Sox, who were plagued by a former teammate.

Catcher Earl Battey connected for a two-run homer in the eighth inning to give Washington Senators a 2-1 decision.

Second-seeded Bobby Delgado of Los Angeles marked himself as the man to beat in the 63rd B.C. lawn tennis championships yesterday, but following him into the semi-finals were three other Americans who have already proved they can beat the best around.

Delgado turned in a fine display to whip Vancouver's Jim Rogers, 6-1, 6-1, and will meet Seattle's Yoshi Minegishi, fifth-seeded Japanese star, in one of today's semi-finals. Minegishi played steady, all-court tennis yesterday to upset third-ranked Dale Roland of Los Angeles.

UNEXPECTED RIVALS

The other semi-final pits Paul Welles of San Francisco, who upset top-seeded Norman Perry of Los Angeles Monday, against Forrest Stewart of Altadena, Calif., who pulled an upset of his own yesterday.

Stewart, seeded eighth, beat fourth-seeded Joe Woolfson of Hayward, Calif., 6-3, 6-4.

Play in the ladies' singles went according to form, with the four top-seeded players advancing to today's semi-finals.

Andrea Miller of Seattle, seeded first, beat Sonia Berdan of Palo Alto, Calif., 6-1, 6-3; Connie Jaster of Los Angeles defeated Jackie Hanson, 5-7, 8-6, 8-6; Suzanne Mandel of Los Angeles downed Mary Jo Conger, also from Los Angeles, 6-3, 6-1, and Mary Sherar advanced with a 6-3, 6-4 win over Marie Cooley of Victoria.

OUTDOORS with Alec Merriman

There is no doubt that a fast motor on a fast boat makes for better fishing.

We had that proved to us quite satisfactorily at the weekend when we went fishing with Bob Wright in his flashy Skagit cruiser, equipped with a 35-horsepower outboard and a 10-horsepower trolling.

We started out from the Big Rock launching ramp near Campbell River, one of the new king fishermen weigh-in stations, and in a couple of minutes we had crossed over to Cape Mudge and had a look at fishing conditions.

Bob had had good luck earlier at the outer kelp, which is a kelp bed about two miles off Butler's Point on Cape Mudge.

We scooted out there in a few seconds and it wasn't more than a few minutes before we were landing our first coho on a super striptearer. Others followed in rapid succession.

"How would you like to see Mittenatch Island," Bob said. He had boated two 20-pounders there earlier in the week. We just scooted the seven miles across the water to Mittenatch where we picked up a small spring.

Another few minutes and we were back at Saratoga Beach with a catch of nine salmon, six of them King Fishermen weighers.

To Bob it was just another fishing trip, but to us it was a chance to see those dots on the horizon which the boys, with the fast boats who get the fish, keep talking about.

But, you don't need a fast boat to get fish on Vancouver Island at the moment. Fishing is coming into its peak and should be there in a couple of weeks.

Tyee salmon have appeared at Campbell River and Comox in increasing numbers, with Victorian Fred Peterson out in the lead with a 61½ pounder landed just off the government jetty at Campbell River and O. F. Lyman of Illinois was not far behind with a 58-pounder caught in the tyee pool. More than 50 boats were fishing the tyee pool Tuesday night and at least one tyee was caught.

E. Sauchom landed Alberni Inlet's first tyee—a 38-pounder at Nahmint—this week. The Port Alberni Tyee Club opened its 1960 season Sunday and is still waiting for its first tyee.

Twenty boats were out after tyee at Comox Sunday and a 42½ pounder and a 23-pounder were landed.

In the April Point Cape Mudge and Butler Point area of Campbell River, boats have been averaging one salmon per boat, with 60 per cent coho from three to 10 pounds, 20 per cent coho grilse and eight per cent springs.

North of Cape Lazo and in the Little River area of Comox fishing has been good, but dropped off on Wednesday. Catch has been 80 per cent coho and has averaged just under one fish a boat.

Shelter Point, seven miles south of Campbell River, has been giving up some good coho. There are plenty about, but they are striking soft and are difficult to hook.

In the deep bay, French Creek, Qualicum Beach area, boats have been averaging 2½ fish a boat with four per cent reporting limit catches.

In the Northwest Bay area on Sunday 100 boats averaged three fish a boat, 80 per cent of them coho in the 5½-pound class, and eight per cent of anglers got their limit.

From Nanos Bay to Dodd Narrows, boats have been averaging one and one-third fish a boat, 60 per cent coho and the rest coho grilse.

Cowichan Bay anglers have so far this season taken 30 salmon averaging 23 pounds. Largest is a 41-pounder. Fifty boats were out Sunday, but the catch was light.

Freshwater fishing is at a low ebb due to warm weather and increased activity in salmon fishing.

Two good bets are the Puntledge and the oyster in the Courtenay district, which are giving up some good cutthroat fishing at the estuaries on incoming tides on bait and flies. An eight-pound cutthroat was caught recently on a small flatfish at the headpond of the John Hart Dam.

Horne and Comox Lakes are fair and the Qualicum River is giving up cutthroat on the bait and fly. Shawinigan Lake is fair in early mornings and evenings on the gang troll and brown trout are being caught on the fly in the early morning and evenings on the Cowichan River. Upper end of Cowichan Lake is producing well, but anglers in the main are not going deep enough.

Alberta Star's 75 Leads; B.C. Team Second

By DOUG HARKNESS

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Rae Milligan, pert brunette from Calgary, carved out a two-under-par 75 over the rolling Riverside Golf and Country Club Thursday to take the lead in the opening round of the 54-hole Canadian women's close golf championships.

Miss Milligan, who plays out of the Calgary Golf and Country Club, grabbed a three-stroke lead over Ruth Wilson of Vancouver and Mrs. Robert Lyle of Montreal, who shot 78s.

BRIDE THIS TIME?

The veteran Calgary performer, runner-up for the championship the last three years it was held, shot a one-over-par 40 on the first nine, then fired a blistering three-under-par 35 coming home.

Her performance equalled the 1957 course record of Mary Ellen Driscoll of the host club. Miss Milligan birdied four holes and registered 12 pars on the 6,300-yard course.

Second round of the medal-play tournament will be played today with the final 18 holes scheduled for Saturday.

Judy Darling, 22-year-old Quebec shotmaker, survived a shaky start and finished with a two-over-par 79, despite an eight on the par five fourth hole. She was fourth, one stroke ahead of Montreal Janet MacWha.

Inter-provincial team championships in the senior and junior divisions are being held in conjunction with the close tournament. The team championships are decided over 36 holes.

Montreal Veteran Paces CPGA Meet

WINNIPEG — Veteran Bill Kerr of Montreal, who won the title away back in 1945, grabbed the first-round lead in the 54-hole Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship here Thursday with a six-under-par 66.

In taking a one-stroke lead over colorful Moe Norman of Toronto, the 48-year-old Kerr used a hot putter for a two-under-par 34 on the front nine, and came home four under with a 32, including an eagle three on the 501-yard 16th, where he sank a 25-foot putt.

Norman, who now plays out of Sleepy Hollow, Ont., had been established as a favorite Wednesday after he shot an amazing 10-under-par 62 in an 18-hole practice round which he breezed through in one hour, 55 minutes for a non-competitive course record. He had seven birdies and two pars on the front nine for a seven-under score of 29, and added two more birdies in coming home three under par.

Competitive record for the Niagara Country Club course is 65, jointly held by Ellsworth Vines of the United States and Eric Banister of Winnipeg.

A total of 18 players cracked par yesterday, including Alan Johnston of Montreal, who won the Rivermead Cup and $300 by shooting a 71 to beat Al Balding of Toronto by one stroke. The two were using their first-round scores to break their tie as low Canadians in the recent Canadian Open in Toronto.

LEONARD AT 69

Still very much in the running in the professional championship are three Vancouver stars—Lyle Crawford and Bill Thompson, recent winner of the Millar Trophy tournament, with 68s, and defending champion and eight-time winner Stan Leonard with 34-35-69. Tied with Leonard was Pete Olynk of Edmonton.

Nick Besner of Bellevue, Que., was alone at 70 and 11 players shot 71. Among the six tied with Balding at par 72 was former Victoria Cougar Stan Baliuk, playing out of Fort William.

Other B.C. scorers were Don Ross of Haney, 75; Ben Colt of Richmond, 76; Ron Fitch and Jack McKinnon of Vancouver, 77; Doug McAlpine of Vancouver, 78, and Al Nelson of Vancouver, 80.

Second round will be played today and the third and final round on Saturday.

Wargo's Pitching Puts Gorge Ahead

Stan Wargo turned in a fine three-hit pitching effort at Central Park last night to lead Gorge Hotel to a 6-0 victory over Mayo Lumber in the opening game of their best-of-five senior "A" men's softball league semi-final.

WHIFFS 17

Wargo struck out 17 batters in eight innings while walking six, and was particularly tough in the clutch. With Gorge leading 4-0, Mayo loaded the bases with none out in the fifth inning, and Wargo struck out the next three men.

Gorge Hotel scored two triples for Gorge and scored both times on Duncan errors.

Second game of the series will be played Sunday at 6:30 at Central Park. Tonight at 6:30, Tudor House and Domans open their best-of-three "B" division playoff.

British Columbia registered a 330. Defending champion Ontario had a four-member total of 332.

British Columbia's two-member, junior squad of Suzanne Foulds and Nancy Young grabbed a one-stroke edge over Quebec in the junior competition. The west coast team had a gross of 179, while Ontario was in third place with 184.

Miss Foulds was tied for sixth place in the closed tournament with Rita Lohnes of Lunenburg, N.S. Both shot 81s.

Toronto's Roma Neundorff and Kay Helleuer of Thornhill, Ont., were tied for eighth spot with scores of 82, one stroke better than Gail Harvey of Toronto and Mrs. W. Turnbull of Saskatoon.

Miss Milligan, a pre-tournament favorite, was the only player to break or even par over the difficult suburban course, regarded by many as one of the nation's toughest.

Miss Wilson led the British Columbia team with her 39-39-78 while the others, Mrs. A. DeGirolamo and Mrs. D. Naysmith of Victoria and Gayle Hitchens of Vancouver, all had identical 43-41-84 scores.

Island Economy Stands Up Despite Forest Closure

Some 5,000 loggers are still without work on Vancouver Island as a result of high to extreme fire hazards, and up to last night there was no indication when the situation would ease.

Employment officials up and down the Island were agreed, however, that the lay-offs resulting from temporarily closed woods operations have not yet hit associated industries to the extent where further lay-offs have been necessary.

"All of our major logging operations are closed down in this area and some businesses are starting to feel the pinch, but the construction business has picked up and the late-starting tourist influx is growing," said a Duncan official of the unemployment insurance commission.

He said close to 1,200 persons are drawing benefits in Duncan but that about 1,300 loggers have been laid off in the district.

At this time a year ago with an industry-wide strike in coast logging underway only 600 were drawing benefits in Duncan.

Nanaimo UIC officials reported between 800 and 900 claimants and said about 1,200 district loggers were temporarily jobless.

A Port Alberni spokesman

for MacMillan, Bloedel & Powell River Ltd. said that by taking advantage of certain timber areas where relatively hazard-free methods can be used in logging the company had been able to keep more than 80 per cent of its men in the woods.

"We've only laid off about 300 men," said the official.

A Courtenay employment official put the fire-hazard jobless in his area at about 600 and said he believed a figure of 5,000 loggers laid off for the entire Island "is a very outside figure."

DC-3s to Remain

'Turbo-Prop' Link to Mainland Further Away

"Turbo-prop" air transportation between Victoria and the mainland may be farther off than at one time expected.

Trans-Canada Air Lines earlier this year announced that the DC-3s that now fly on the Victoria-Vancouver-Seattle runs would be retired by the end of 1960, and replaced with turbo-prop Vickers Viscounts.

But an official said yesterday that the date of the changeover hasn't been decided—"Possibly it will be before the end of the year, or perhaps the DC-3s will be flying for two or three months of next year."

How soon the DC-3s are retired, he said, depends on how soon the Viscounts are available, and that depends on how soon new Vanguard aircraft are available for runs elsewhere in Canada.

CCF Researcher Out of a Job Just Like MLAs

By PETER BRUTON

A day-to-day potpourri of incidental intelligence concerning B.C.'s coming Sept. 12 provincial election:

SORRY FOR THE INCONVENIENCE: John Wood, research officer for Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, suddenly found himself among the ranks of the unemployed yesterday—along with 51 MLAs.

Under existing legislation there is no provision for a research officer for the Leader of the Opposition at this time for a simple reason—officially, with the legislature dissolved, there can be no MLAs until after the election, and that includes Mr. Strachan.

Provincial officials scratched their heads yesterday in an effort to solve the situation. But by last night no solution had been found and there was talk that Mr. Wood would have to go to Vancouver on the CCF payroll until after Sept. 12.

Catch-Phrase to Catch Votes

BUTTON UP: Vote-winning success of a catchy political slogan has not been underestimated by B.C.'s Liberals, who yesterday began distributing thousands of "Go Grit" lapel buttons around the province.

They hope the phrase will catch on in much the same manner as the federal Conservatives' "Follow John" slogan did in 1957.

Victoria Liberal campaign official Walley Lightbody yesterday became one of the first to sport the button here.

SUMMIT MEETING: Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce has invited all 12 Victoria riding candidates to take part in an election rally at Central Junior High School Sept. 9 at 8 p.m.

W. A. Scott to Run

INDEPENDENCE: Well-known city second-hand dealer W. A. Scott has decided to contest the Oak Bay riding under the banner of a new party—"The Independent, Anti-Fascist Movement for Trade with New China."

Expelled from the Oak Bay branch of Social Credit in 1954, he's starting his campaign off today by tearing up his CCF membership card.

"I will sacrifice everything

All Candidates Invited

LEGAL DIFFERENCE: City lawyer David Hummel is the Victoria Liberal campaign manager.

His partner, A. DeB. McPhillips, is Victoria's Conservative MP in Ottawa.

SWELL FIGURE: The way CCF Leader Robert Strachan figures it, he represents the majority of the voters of B.C. Only 46 per cent of the voters cast their ballots in favor of Social Credit in 1956, he said yesterday.

And as the Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition, Mr. Strachan represents the remaining 54 per cent.

ALL THAT GLITTERS: Provincial legislative buildings looked a little gayer yesterday morning.

Some 20 cars parked outside sported green-and-gold ribbons—Social Credit's official colors. The cars were those of Social Credit women's auxiliary members who were entering some U.S. visitors.

HELP WANTED: City Liberals are appealing for campaign workers of all kinds including drivers and canvassers. Those wishing to help are asked to phone EV 3-2733.

Provincial Figures Challenged

By R. O. MARRION

Premier Bennett has built up his figures for provincial aid to municipalities in "curious ways," a political opponent said yesterday.

The provincial government's newly-issued review of government finances drew this first shot in the election campaign from Maj.-Gen. C. A. P. Murison, a Conservative candidate in Victoria and former president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

EXCELLED HIMSELF

"Mr. Bennett as finance minister is certainly The Great Illusionist," he said, "and in compiling his figures for assistance to municipalities he has excelled himself."

The review, he said, shows the provincial home-owner grant of $11,773,000 "as a grant to municipalities for general purposes. But except that the municipalities are saddled with the labor and expense of paying it out, they are not affected by it in the least."

CUNNINGLY LISTED

A group of services listed under the general heading of social assistance and amounting to more than $26,000,000, he said, is "cunningly listed as aid to municipalities and not, as it is noted, to municipalities and their ratepayers, and practically all of these are federal-provincial services and have nothing to do with local government except that municipalities act as cashiers for the provincial government and that their ratepayers are in certain cases compelled by the province to foot 10 per cent of the bill."

PER-DIEM CHARGES

Elimination of per-diem hospital charges formerly paid by municipalities is listed for $1,200,000, Gen. Murison said, and "this item is all the government passes on to the municipalities out of the millions for hospitals it is now receiving from the federal government—about $32,000,000 in the last two years. This just shows the hollowiness of Mr. Bennett's approach to Ottawa for more help for municipalities."

LESS THAN GRANT

The review lists as aid $200,000 for capital district improvement, he said—"This is less than the grant the provincial government ought to be paying Victoria city in lieu of taxes on provincial property, which, unlike the federal government, it refuses to do. The ratepayers of Victoria are in effect meeting the whole cost of the improvement scheme, although it benefits not only Victoria but the whole district."

NOT LOCAL

"In such curious ways the government manages to build up its aid to municipalities to the imposing total of $113,000,000. The real figure is about $67,000,000, and even this sum includes education, which by every test is a provincial service to the people as a whole and not a local service."

NO DUPLICATION

He said it is not duplication of skating facilities but expansion of already overcrowded skating facilities.

The bylaw must secure a 60 per cent majority to pass.

Beaver Lake Loses First Snag

An underwater snag which slashed the wrist of a boy swimming at Beaver Lake has been removed, city parks administrator W. H. Warren said yesterday, but study of other desirable improvements at Elk and Beaver Lakes will await the end of the summer.

Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee recently asked Mr. Warren to study and report on the cost of removing other snags which may become exposed, adding more sand to the beaches, and installing drainage to prevent sand from continuing to be swept away.

"We can do that best at the end of the summer," Mr. Warren said. "The water level is sinking steadily, and the study should be made when it's at its lowest."

Cyclist's Death Ruled Accident By Inquest Jury

Death last Monday evening of young Victoria cyclist Michael Harrison, 14, of 2727 Wark, was ruled accidental by a coroner's jury yesterday.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Harrison, was involved in an accident at about 9 p.m. at Burnside and Orillia. He suffered an apparent fracture of the left side of the skull, according to medical evidence, and was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital.

100 YARDS BEHIND

The accident was described by Major Alan Harbord-Harbord of Work Point, who was driving his own car about 100 yards behind the young cyclist. "I came from a shopping district onto Burnside," the officer said, "falling in behind a truck, a car and a boy riding a racing bicycle. All were travelling at about 28 miles an hour."

TRIED TO PASS

"Twice the boy tried to pass the car and truck ahead and each time was forced back by oncoming traffic."

"Then I saw the brown car slow down; the boy swung out to his left to avoid hitting it; the truck in front turned left; the boy tried to jam on his brakes but was too close. He slammed into the truck."

Amrik Anup Singh, 904 King's, driver of the car just ahead of the boy, said he was following his brother, Sargit Singh of 910 Market, driving the wood truck.

Amrik Singh said he wasn't aware of the cyclist at all until he was preparing to follow the truck in a left turn onto Orillia.

"Then I felt something beside me. I looked and there was this bicycle . . . the cyclist fell down . . . I thought he had just grazed the side of my car and fallen down. I have ridden and fallen off lots of bikes."

CALL POLICE

"I told my brother I would look after the boy, and for him to go on . . . I asked the people nearby to call the police and an ambulance."

Truck driver Sargit Singh said he was aware of nothing until he heard a car honking. It was his brother.

"I looked back and saw a young lad in a slight spin, and fall down."

CALL POLICE

"I don't know how to swim myself," said one mother, "and that makes it all the more interesting."

"I wouldn't know how to go about telling the children how to swim, but my goodness, Mrs. Naysmith makes a wonderful job of it!"

"They don't have any fear of the water," said another, "and that makes a big difference. Oh, look at Hughie now!"

Most of the parents found their children doing well: the expressions ranged from a modest "not too bad" to an excited "very, very well."

Chief instructor Mrs. Margie Naysmith confirmed their impressions. The children in the free swimming classes, she said, are making good progress.

Swim Classes

Parents Proud, Happy

This is parents' week at the Colonist free swimming classes at Happyland, but parents weren't the only spectators yesterday.

There were little brothers and sisters, bigger sisters, a grandmother or two, and "just friends" as well as parents, most of them obviously proud and all of them intensely interested.

"I don't know how to swim myself," said one mother, "and that makes it all the more interesting."

"I wouldn't know how to go about telling the children how to swim, but my goodness, Mrs. Naysmith makes a wonderful job of it!"

Enthusiastic Golfer Scores Gyro Ace

Bernie Rogers, 5187 Cordova Bay Road, an enthusiastic golfer, picked up a $50 prize after shooting a hole-in-one last night at the Victoria Gyro Club carnival at Royal Athletic Park.

Winner of the food hamper, a nighty prize, was Arthur C. McLeod, 3256 Doncaster.

AUCTION HELD

An auction of household items donated by club members was a popular highlight which netted $350. Another auction will be held on the grounds Saturday night.

Today the grounds open at 7:30 p.m. and there is no admission fee.

"We had a good crowd and they took part in everything," said club secretary Bill Hudson. "We're thankful for good weather and proceeds are holding up to last year."

Gyros are expecting a sizeable turnout of children on Saturday afternoon.

Aged Need Home Help

Federal government policies on provision of housing for the aged should be reviewed and made more favorable, executive director Glen Hamilton of the Silver Threads Service suggested last night.

A housing committee of the service will "look into the problem a little more deeply" in the fall, he said, but "I suspect the current interest rate on Central Mortgage & Housing Corporation loans for senior citizens' housing has put the damper on many badly-needed, non-profit housing developments for senior citizens."

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I started to read your column for entertainment. After a while I began to pick up some useful hints on how to handle personal problems. I never dreamed that one day you would help me become a lawyer.

This is exactly what happened. In February of 1960 there appeared in your column a problem dealing with the over-hanging branches of a walnut tree. The writer wanted to know if the walnuts which fell onto the neighbor's property belonged to him or to the neighbor.

You gave a comprehensive answer which evidently had been checked out by an attorney. I read your reply several times and embedded the facts securely in my mind.

I am a Certified Public Accountant and I studied law. Unfortunately, I was too busy with my accounting practice to study thoroughly for the bar exam last month. I am enclosing the Maryland bar exam, and call your attention to Question 12. The question is identical to the problem you handled in your column, except here it deals with apples, and you used walnuts.

Passing grade is 210 points. My final grade was 210 points. Had I missed your column on that particular day I would surely have flunked the bar exam and would not be a lawyer today. Thank you very much.—B.S.R. of BALTIMORE.

Dear B.S.R.: Congratulations—but don't thank me. Thank the editor of the newspaper in which you read me. I only write the column. It's the editor who makes it available to the readers. Naturally I am pleased and it was good of you to write.

Dear Ann: My sister-in-law has been in the family for six years and I just learned some shocking news about her.

Mary has never been known to take a drink at a party or in her own home. She always has ginger ale and pretends that she dislikes alcohol. The other evening she was drinking ginger ale as usual and when she excused herself to go to the other room I followed her. She reached into her handbag, took out what appeared to be a medicine bottle and had a big swig. I checked the bottle a few minutes later and sure enough, it was straight gin.

Shall I tell her I know and now she can quit trying to kid the world? It turns me up that she puts on the nice-nice act when she's really a lush.—ON TO HER.

Dear On: Say nothing. Mary needs help, not humiliation. It's enough that she knows she's alcoholic. Letting her know that you know, too, will not improve the situation. Your letter indicates neither understanding nor desire to help, so I suggest you remain silent.

Dear Ann Landers: This is no big deal but we need to know—wrong or right.

My boy friend puts the whole olive into his mouth, and then spits out the seed. He doesn't even remove the stone with his fingers. He sort of pings it onto the dinner plate.

I say you should not touch the olive or the pit with your hands. You should pierce it with a fork, and remove the pit by depositing it in a spoon. Who is right?—CONNIE.

Dear Connie: You're both wrong. It's perfectly proper to touch an olive with your fingers. The correct procedure is to pick it up and nibble the meat off the stone. (Pinging the pits is out!)

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for Ann Landers' latest, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 50 cents and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope. (Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

WHAT'S COOKING

By LOUISE MOORE

Summer in January—that's what you'll enjoy when you pack all the freshness of field and orchard in your freezer. And if rushed from field to freezer, flavor texture and color are captured for luxurious winter eating.

Freezing fruits and vegetables is a simple procedure, but do the job quickly to capture the full food value of whatever you prepare to freeze.

For quick freezing select fruits and vegetables at the proper degree of maturity. Only quality produce makes good frozen products.

Handle small quantities at a time to avoid loss of color, flavor and appearance.

Rush to freezer or locker without a moment's delay where they will be held at zero storage.

Practically all vegetables except those which are eaten raw as salads—namely, lettuce, celery, radishes, cucumbers, tomatoes, cabbage and onions—quick freeze satisfactorily.

PREPARE BY BLANCHING
Select young tender vegetables of the proper variety. Prepare and wash as for canning.

Vegetables for quick freeze require blanching—this is a must to kill chemical enzymes that cause loss of quality of vegetables during storage.

TIME SAVER
Here's a jiffy vegetable treat made with frozen peas and canned small potatoes. Prepare the frozen peas according to package directions. Drain potatoes and add to peas in a saucepan, with three tbsps. butter or margarine and one tsp. of ready-to-use chopped dill weed from your spice shelf. Heat until potatoes are hot. Serves 6.

Wherever there are flies—

THE PUSHBUTTON AEROSOL
98¢ & $1.49
REGULAR FLY-TOX SPRAY
8-oz. 49¢, 16-oz. 69¢,
32-oz. $1.49

Also, blanching deepens the color of the product, partially sterilizes it and makes it softer for packing.

Blanching is accomplished by placing a small amount of the vegetable in a large amount of water over a high heat source so that the water returns rapidly to a boil after the vegetable is put in. Not more than a minute should be required for the water to return to a boil.

At least a gallon of water should be allowed for each pound of vegetable—2 gallons for a leafy vegetable. Place about 1 pound of the vegetable in a square of cheesecloth and place in kettle. Agitate the vegetable to ensure even heating. Start counting the recommended time only when the water returns to the boil.

At the end of blanching period cool the vegetable immediately in cold, preferably running water. Prompt and complete cooling is important to ensure top quality. Drain briefly and package.

MR. AND MRS. J. O. NICHOLLS

Date in Doubt For 50 Years

Doubt about the actual date of their wedding has led Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Nicholls of 920 Selkirk Avenue, to celebrate their anniversary on Aug. 9 and 10, in past years. This year, their golden wedding anniversary, they have chosen Saturday Aug. 6 for an "at home."

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholls were married in Wakefield Cathedral, Yorks, England, in 1910, either on Aug. 9 or 10. Even the certificate of marriage has both dates on it. But Mrs. Nicholls is sure it was a Tuesday, and so Aug. 9.

About 1925 they came to Canada and settled at Nanaimo, where Mr. Nicholls became President of the General Hospital Board, and president of Vancouver Island Chamber of Mines and Commerce.

Mrs. Nicholls was president of the hospital auxiliary.

In 1934 Mr. Nicholls was appointed a member of the Economic Council of B.C. under the premiership of the Hon. T. D. Pattullo.

Since they moved to Victoria, 20 years ago, Mrs. Nicholls has taken an active part in both the Business and Professional Women's Club, and the Local Council of Women.

Their sons, Owen and Cedric, both of Victoria, will be present, with their families, at the celebrations on Saturday. Out of town guests for the occasion will include Mrs. Nicholls' two sisters, Mrs. Clara Scott of Nanaimo and Mrs. Stan Collier with her husband, Reeve Stan Collier, of W. Vancouver. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Inkster, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Faushe, Mrs. Agnes Hogan, Mrs. P. Foster and Mrs. G. Brown will come from Nanaimo, and Capt. and Mrs. J. Shannon, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Maxwell and Mrs. Boyd Shannon from Vancouver.

Attendants in Yellow For Myrna Morris

A honeymoon in the United States followed the recent marriage in St. John's Anglican Church, of Myrna Ann Morris and Mr. Gordon David Deacon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Morris, 2624 Quadra Street. Groom's parents are Lieut. Harry Deacon, RCN, and Mrs. Deacon.

Canon George Biddle officiated at this double-ring ceremony.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white silk organza, enhanced with Chantilly lace. Sequins trimmed the lace bodice. A tiara of seed pearls held her elbow-length veil. White gardenias surrounded the red rosebuds in her cascade bouquet. Only jewelry was a pair of culture earrings, gift of the groom.

Canary yellow silk organza gowns, styled on bouffant lines, with picture hats in tone were worn by the three attendants. These were matron of honor, Mrs. Russell Sigerson, Richmond, B.C.; bridesmaid, Mrs. John Emslie and bridesmaid, Miss Joan Stewart.

Ian Millar was best man and ushers were Bob Harknett and Adrien Birtwistle.

Lionel Singlehurst, Vancouver, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast to the bride at a reception in Holyrood House. Pink roses and candles flanked the three-tier wedding cake, made by the bride's mother.

A horizon blue tailored suit with wide stand-up collar was chosen by the new Mrs. Deacon for the honeymoon trip. Matching flowered hat was trimmed with tiny velvet bows. She wore pearl white accessories and wore a corsage of pink princess roses on her suit.

Newlyweds will make their home at 597 Peto Place.

TIPS FOR PARENTS

By HELEN R. HEWSON

Mr. and Mrs. James Masse celebrated their golden wedding anniversary recently.

They are the parents of Canada's largest family, 21 children.

"We have always enjoyed our children, a large family is wonderful," said Mrs. Masse. It is refreshing to hear of sensible people like the Masses unalarmed by all the analytical jargon bandied about.

They have had the courage and the confidence to enjoy their children.

They have probably been too busy to worry very much about the scoldings parents have received.

Family life has been examined and found wanting and this constant criticism has undermined the very things that needs to be strengthened—parents' confidence in themselves and their pleasure in their children.

These are two basic needs for good family life.

Self-confidence grows with experience, but most new parents are wiser than they think.

When the first baby arrives they may be a bit clumsy with safety pins and formula but they can enjoy his smiles, kicks and gurgles; they can comfort and guide with affection and firmness when needed.

Their own feelings and reactions as human beings have taught them much they can use in their new role as parents.

Parents who have confidence in themselves will not be bowled over by normal child development: the temper tantrums, scrapping, flashes of defiance, wiles and coaxing. They know that children are imperfect creatures with much to learn.

Cpl. Farmer Married In Ottawa

A wedding of interest in Victoria took place in Westboro United Church, Ottawa, recently when Miss Elizabeth Rose Small, daughter of Mrs. John Small of Ottawa, became the wife of Cpl. Robin Edward Farmer, RAF, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Farmer of Victoria.

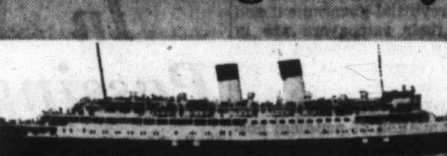

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Gerald Trickett of London, Ont., and was attended by her sister, Miss Jean Small, as maid of honor, and her niece, Miss Geraldine Small, as flowergirl.

Best man was Mr. Gerald J. Small with Mr. Robert A. Small acting as usher.

Mr. and Mrs. Farmer will live in Ottawa on their return from a wedding trip to Florida.

Women Cut Loose

Hair Clipping Symbolic

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—We women sporting short-cropped hair are clipping men on the chin—symbolically.

Historically, when the air's heady with rebellion and females feel restive, off comes the hair.

The quick clip is a symbolic act of emancipation—a tenuous declaration of independence.

After the terror of the French revolution, women cut loose, shearing their hair "a la victime" as a gruesome reminder of the snipping that preceded the trip to the guillotine.

In the restive wake that followed both world wars, as well as the Korean engagement, females reached for the scissors.

SUBMISSIVENESS

The wind-blown bob of the flapper age, the poodle cut and the Italian cut of the fifties illustrate this recurring phenomena.

Historically, long hair has been symbolic of female submissiveness.

Arab women indicated its great value by cutting their hair on pilgrimages to Mecca. Grecian women offered "mourning locks" on the graves of their husbands.

And our British cousins, years ago, sheared the heads of unfaithful wives in lieu of cutting their throats.

RANK

Throughout history, a woman's rank was indicated by the length of her hair and the elaborateness of her coiffure. The more intricate the hair style, the more it advertised her as a sheltered and protected creature of some male.

In a book published at the turn of the century, females were admonished against hair cutting. The preachment: "Women there are who are drawn into the habit of hair cutting from a spirit of bon camaraderie with their husbands. That sort of familiarity between men and women is productive of no good."

"The more hair a woman has the more womanly she is. Do not tamper or trifle with a man's exalted idea of womanhood."

But what about the contemporary female? When she crops her hair, is it a rebel act? Or—is it simply a change of hairstyle to keep up with fashion?

Most men believe the former and consider the latter a secondary reason. A nation-wide survey indicating this showed that 64 per cent of the males prefer long hair on their mates.

Tree Farm Visitors

ERRINGTON, B.C.—Recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Butler were Mr. and Mrs. A. Plett and family of Duncan. The husband and wife team of photographers were in the district on an assignment for the CBC-TV broadcast of interesting happenings and news-worthy features on Vancouver Island.

The point of interest was the Kirk Christmas Tree Farm, the largest in B.C., where pruning is in progress.

Trees that are undergoing treatment at the present time will be ready for the Christmas trade in 1961. The farm is located near the entrance to the Englishman River Falls Provincial Park.

JOYOUS MEETING EDMONTON (CP)—A wedding trip to Edmonton proved doubly joyous for Mrs. Martin Meir of Salvatore, Sas., when she found two sisters and a brother whom she had not seen for 40 years.

Mr. and Mrs. John McGinnis are parents of the bride. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. McQueen of Toronto.

Rev. M. McNamara conducted the evening ceremony. The bride wore a plain white satin dress, princess style, with a small train. Her fingertip veil was held by a coronet of seed pearls. The veil was borrowed from the bride's cousin, Mrs. M. Bill of Vulcan, Alta.

Mrs. Joyce Carlson, of Duncan was matron of honor, with Miss Margaret Moysichyn of Victoria acting as bridesmaids. Miss Diane McGinnis, sister of the bride was junior bridesmaid and Miss Sharon Kehn, bride's niece, was flower girl.

Senior attendants wore figured dresses of white and purple with full skirts and scoop necklines. Accessories were white and they carried

New Work Sought On Buttle Road

CAMPBELL RIVER — Provincial highways department will be asked to do more work on the Buttle Lake road by Campbell River Chamber of Commerce.

The road has been graded only once this year and two trailers broke down due to the hard going this week.

Many Don't Fit

Girdle Riding Up?

TORONTO (CP) — Verna Comings, stylist for a girdle and bra company, estimates that half the women she deals with are wearing ill-fitted, uncomfortable lingerie though their outer clothing may fit perfectly.

And she puts the blame largely on the sales people, not the customer.

"If a customer is shy to ask advice it's because the salesgirl makes her feel that way."

When Miss Comings began selling lingerie in 1925 the nipped-in waist was the fashion.

"The garments gave you a nipped-in waist all right, but they made you look hippy and busty."

This was followed by the flat look which made everyone look like a block.

"In those days everything was pink. It wasn't until later that we got white."

Advertisements used to describe the pink as flesh color, tea rose, nude or peach. Underclothing now comes in black and many pastel shades as well as white.

A Second World War shortage was responsible for introduction of the French bra. Because elastic was hard to obtain, the French model which laced up the back became popular. These are museum pieces now, Miss Comings said.

"All the control was from the straps and women's shoulders were ridged from the weight."

She says a properly fitted bra is controlled under the bustline and through the back. The back fastening should fit below the shoulder blades.

"No well-dressed woman is ever without a garment, even with shorts or slacks," she insists. There is even a knee-length girdle which has been designed for slims, Miss Comings says women need the moulding that a girdle gives.

"A girdle should be long enough to sit in," she says, adding that many women who complained that their girdles rode up bought a shorter model when they really needed a longer one.

Although it depends on the individual, most girls should be wearing a bra at 11, she says.

The natural rounded bustline with a well-controlled waistline is the fashion and that's why brasques are so popular now, Miss Comings says. In keeping with the feminine look in fashions, many designs are made in lace.

New Wing Start Set By 1961

Construction of the new wing at Royal Jubilee Hospital will definitely start within the next six months, administrator George Masters said yesterday.

Provincial government architects are now working on the plans and tenders will be called before the end of the year.

Mr. Masters said it had been necessary to first install a $32,000 boiler capable of heating the entire hospital, including the new wing. Also completed first were new quarters for internes, a new parking lot for doctors with accommodation for 75 cars, construction of new maintenance shops and a storeroom and renovation of the laundry building.

Original plans presented to the public during the recent fund-raising campaign have been "almost completely changed" after they were studied completely by architects, consultants and specialists of the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service, said Mr. Masters.

Changes included "improvements that will be of tremendous value to the area served by Royal Jubilee in the years to come," he said.

Thousands of Lots Sold

Tourists Flock To Gulf Islands

NANAIMO—The Gulf Islands near Nanaimo are proving to be one of the most popular summer attractions for U.S. tourists visiting B.C. Local townsfolk, too, are trying to get away from the pressure of the city are finding some of the islands a refuge.

Real estate firms here are subdividing thousands of acres on the islands, and the lots are being snapped up almost as quickly as they go on sale. The recent subdivision project announced here is for $1,500,000, by Nanaimo Realty on Protection Island, the largest island facing Nanaimo.

FROM ALL OVER

Real estate men here say the popularity and boom of island land is prompting requests from all over the U.S. and Canada.

U.S. citizens as far away as New York, Wisconsin and California are making inquiries every day.

One Nanaimo realtor said: "These islands have decreased in population the last 40 years." This was caused by families moving there a little after the turn of the century and settling on farms. Later they found they couldn't make a living at farming and left for the city. There are many derelict farms on some of these islands.

RICH OVERNIGHT

Many, who held on to the land after moving to the city, have become rich overnight by the offers from real estate firms to develop the land for subdivision.

Gabriola Island had a population of 342 in 1940. Today it only has 482.

A real estate man dealing in island property said: "The American tourists as well as using the land for a summer home to spend a few months . . . have an eye for retirement also. He likes to maintain the rustic effect and think himself as a pioneer."

PROVINCIAL PARKS

The government also looks upon the islands as tourist attractions and provincial parks. Recently a five-acre park was opened by Recreation Minister Earl Westwood on Gabriola Island. A small wharf is being maintained by the government for people who come to the park from Vancouver and Vancouver Island by boat.

Most of the lots, at least the expensive ones, face the ocean and are usually close to the beach. And this is what is selling . . . the uncrowded

Ancient Lamp in Duncan

This tiny, 2,500-year-old lamp owned by a Duncan made is similar to those used in Bethlehem for rites before the start of Christianity.—(Colonist photo by Charles Thompson.)

Cowichan Fair

Ancient Lamp To Be Shown

DUNCAN — A lamp believed to be 2,500 years old will be among a collection of antiques to be entered in the Cowichan exhibition Sept. 9 and 10.

Found in the strata of the Chaldean era near Bethlehem, the clay lamp appears to be a model similar to those used in rites before the dawn of Christianity.

"It is a very good specimen," said its owner, Roy S. Temple, 1031 Wharnclyffe. "Actually, it is too bad it is not in a collection of that period."

The Chaldeans were a Semitic race in Babylonia, but their power appears to have vanished with the death of Augustus, in 538 B.C. their last king.

It was found by a missionary and given to Mr. Temple.

Other pieces in the collection are a Bible printed in 1868, a book of sea ballads in 1874, and a frontier, foot-operated bellows for squirting air on heated rocks to break them up to get the metal content for assay purpose.

stolen about the time of the accident.

One half of the seven-foot high mesh gate was found lying on the ground when a commissioner went to open it yesterday morning. The car was gone. A report was then made to RCMP.

A commissioner at the Sooke Road entrance to the college last night smilingly said, "I wasn't on duty at the time, thank goodness."

Immigrants received in the United States from 1901 to 1910 totalled 8,514,000.

Colwood RCMP last night refused to confirm or deny reports that a car was reported while not passing a motor vehicle proceeding in the same direction.

The offence took place recently on the Trans-Canada Highway on Bamberton Hill when Antrobus was proceeding south.

The highway is only marked that slow traffic should use the right-hand lane. A coroner's jury here recommended, and police followed suit, that the signs should be replaced with some reading "Centre lane for passing only" after two Victoria men died when their cars collided on the hill in the centre lane.

City Trying To Meet Signal Rule

Victoria has been "co-operating 100 per cent within its means," a city engineering official said yesterday, in making its traffic signals conform with a national standard informally adopted by all provinces.

The provincial highways department yesterday asked that all municipalities bring installations to the new standard. "Victoria, the official said, has 14 intersections with multi-lane signals that meet the standard, but 16 with single-lane signals and 18 with multi-lane signals that fall short of the standard.

MYSTERY PLANET

Pluto, the most distant known planet in the solar system, remains a puzzle to astronomers 30 years after its discovery.

Food, Clothing Cuts Lower Living Cost

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian living costs eased slightly in June due to lower prices for some food items and clothing, the bureau of statistics said Thursday.

The consumer price index fell by one-tenth of a point to 127.5 at July 1, but was up 1.6 from that date last year.

Pearkes Attack:

'Scrap All' Liberal Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Pearkes said Thursday Liberal defence policy is a "whole policy of scrap."

He said in the Commons the Liberals want to scrap the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile, the CF-104 jet plane, nuclear warheads and new destroyers. "This is a program of scrap, scrap," he said.

Mr. Pearkes seized on an account of a speech of Paul Hellyer, Liberal defence critic, which appeared in the Ottawa Citizen two hours before Mr. Hellyer could deliver it. By using the account, he was able to reply to nearly all the major points before the discomfited Mr. Hellyer could get the floor.

Mr. Hellyer advocated that the Bomarc be scrapped, thus obviating the need for storing nuclear warheads on Canadian soil.

Island Economy Stands Up Despite Forest Closure

Some 5,000 loggers are still without work on Vancouver Island as a result of high to extreme fire hazards, and up to last night there was no indication when the situation would ease.

Employment officials up and down the Island were agreed, however, that the lay-offs resulting from temporarily closed woods operations have not yet hit associated industries to the extent where further lay-offs have been necessary.

"All of our major logging operations are closed down in this area and some businesses are starting to feel the pinch, but the construction business has picked up and the late-starting tourist influx is growing," said a Duncan official of the unemployment insurance commission.

He said close to 1,200 persons are drawing benefits in Duncan but that about 1,300 loggers have been laid off in the district.

At this time a year ago with an industry-wide strike in coast logging underway only 600 were drawing benefits in Duncan.

Nanaimo UIC officials reported between 800 and 900 claimants and said about 1,200 district loggers were temporarily jobless.

A Port Alberni spokesman

for MacMillan, Bloedel & Powell River Ltd. said that by taking advantage of certain timber areas where relatively hazard-free methods can be used in logging the company had been able to keep more than 80 per cent of its men in the woods.

"We've only laid off about 300 men," said the official.

A Courtenay employment official put the fire-hazard jobless in his area at about 600 and said he believed a figure of 5,000 loggers laid off for the entire Island "is a very outside figure."

DC-3s to Remain

'Turbo-Prop' Link to Mainland Further Away

"Turbo-prop" air transportation between Victoria and the mainland may be farther off than at one time expected.

Trans-Canada Air Lines earlier this year announced that the DC-3s that now fly on the Victoria-Vancouver-Seattle runs would be retired by the end of 1960, and replaced with turbo-prop Vickers Viscounts.

But an official said yesterday that the date of the changeover hasn't been decided—"Possibly it will be before the end of the year, or perhaps the DC-3s will be flying for two or three months of next year."

How soon the DC-3s are retired, he said, depends on how soon the Viscounts are available, and that depends on how soon new Vanguard aircraft are available for runs elsewhere in Canada.

CCF Researcher Out of a Job Just Like MLAs

By PETER BRUTON

A day-to-day potpourri of incidental intelligence concerning B.C.'s coming Sept. 12 provincial election:

SORRY FOR THE INCONVENIENCE: John Wood, research officer for Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, suddenly found himself among the ranks of the unemployed yesterday—along with 51 MLAs.

Under existing legislation there is no provision for a research officer for the Leader of the Opposition at this time for a simple reason—officially, with the legislature dissolved, there can be no MLAs until after the election, and that includes Mr. Strachan.

Provincial officials scratched their heads yesterday in an effort to solve the situation. But by last night no solution had been found and there was talk that Mr. Wood would have to go to Vancouver on the CCF payroll until after Sept. 12.

Catch-Phrase to Catch Votes

BUTTON UP: Vote-winning success of a catchy political slogan has not been underestimated by B.C.'s Liberals, who yesterday began distributing thousands of "Go Grit" lapel buttons around the province.

They hope the phrase will catch on in much the same manner as the federal Conservatives' "Follow John" slogan did in 1957.

Victoria Liberal campaign official Walley Lightbody yesterday became one of the first to sport the button here.

INDEPENDENCE: Well-known city second-hand dealer W. A. Scott has decided to contest the Oak Bay riding under the banner of a new party—

"The Independent, Anti-Fascist Movement for Trade with New China."

Expelled from the Oak Bay branch of Social Credit in 1954, he's starting his campaign off today by tearing up his CCF membership card.

"I will sacrifice everything else I believe in to destroy fascism," he said.

"We in Canada are only 18,000,000 ants," declared Mr. Scott. "You have another country called China with 600,000,000 ants and the ants in China are quite willing to trade with the ants in Canada."

This, he said, would benefit Canada by a ratio of 53 to one. The Sacred government, he added, was "composed of Social Credit impostors."

All Candidates Invited

SUMMIT MEETING: Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce has invited all 12 Victoria riding candidates to take part in an election rally at Central Junior High School Sept. 9 at 8 p.m.

LEGAL DIFFERENCE: City lawyer David Hummel is the Victoria Liberal campaign manager.

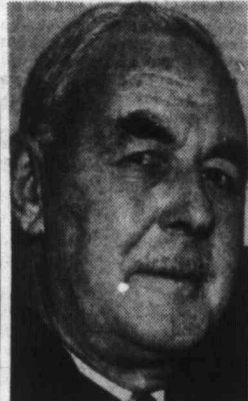

His partner, A. DeB. McPhillips, is Victoria's Conservative MP in Ottawa.

SWELL FIGURE: The way CCF Leader Robert Strachan figures it, he represents the majority of the voters of B.C. Only 46 per cent of the voters cast their ballots in favor of Social Credit in 1956, he said yesterday.

And as the Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition, Mr. Strachan represents the remaining 54 per cent.

ALL THAT GLITTERS: Provincial legislative buildings looked a little gayer yesterday morning.

Provincial Figures Challenged

By R. O. MARRION

Premier Bennett has built up his figures for provincial aid to municipalities in "curious ways," a political opponent said yesterday.

The provincial government's newly-issued review of government finances drew this first shot in the election campaign from Maj.-Gen. C. A. P. Murison, a Conservative candidate in Victoria and former president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

EXCELLED HIMSELF

"Mr. Bennett as finance minister is certainly The Great Illusionist," he said, "and in compiling his figures for assistance to municipalities he has excelled himself."

The review, he said, shows the provincial home-owner grant of $11,773,000 "as a grant to municipalities for general purposes. But except that the municipalities are saddled with the labor and expense of paying it out, they are not affected by it in the least."

CUNNINGLY LISTED

A group of services listed under the general heading of social assistance and amounting to more than $26,000,000, he said, is "cunningly listed as aid to municipal residents and not, be it noted, to municipalities and their ratepayers, and practically all of these are federal-provincial services and have nothing to do with local government except that municipalities act as cashiers for the provincial government and that their ratepayers are in certain cases compelled by the province to foot 10 per cent of the bill."

PER-DIEM CHARGES

Elimination of per-diem hospital charges formerly paid by municipalities is listed for $1,200,000. Gen. Murison said, and "this item is all the government passes on to the municipalities out of the millions for hospitals it is now receiving from the federal government—about $32,000,000 in the last two years. This just shows the hollowiness of Mr. Bennett's approach to Ottawa for more help for municipalities."

LESS THAN GRANT

The review lists as aid $200,000 for capital district improvement, he said—"This is less than the grant the provincial government ought to be paying Victoria city in lieu of taxes on provincial property, which, unlike the federal government, it refuses to do. The ratepayers of Victoria are in effect meeting the whole cost of the improvement scheme, although it benefits not only Victoria but the whole district."

NOT LOCAL

"In such curious ways the government manages to build up its 'aid to municipalities' to the imposing total of $113,000,000. The real figure is about $67,000,000, and even this sum includes education, which by every test is a provincial service to the people as a whole and not a local service."

Wurtele:

Arena Likely To Win

Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele said yesterday he is confident the municipality's ratepayers will approve a $400,000 bylaw Aug. 13 with which to finance a new arena.

He said response to the arena plan so far "seems very enthusiastic."

ONE RESPONSE

In spite of repeated offers to personally explain full details of the plan to any ratepayer who was doubtful about it, only one individual has indicated an intention of seeking further enlightenment, said the Reeve.

He said he hopes the bylaw gets the same six-to-one support which a $300,000 Esquimalt road construction bylaw got a few years ago.

LOWEST DEBT

He pointed out that Esquimalt enjoys the lowest per capita debt of any municipality of comparable size in B.C. "and still will have the lowest after the arena bylaw is passed."

He said the municipality's total debt, including schools and local improvement projects, is only about $700,000.

SINGLE PROBLEM

The only criticism he has heard of the arena plan was to the effect that it meant duplicating facilities which already exist at Victoria's Memorial Arena.

"But this is not correct at all," he went on. "This is not a great big structure like Memorial Arena, it is a fairly modest building which will probably be used as much in the summer as it will in the winter."

NO DUPLICATION

He said it is not duplication of skating facilities but expansion of already over-crowded skating facilities. The bylaw must secure a 60 per cent majority to pass.

Beaver Lake Loses First Snag

An underwater snag which slashed the wrist of a boy swimming at Beaver Lake has been removed, city parks administrator W. H. Warren said yesterday, but a study of other desirable improvements at Elk and Beaver Lakes will await the end of the summer.

Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee recently asked Mr. Warren to study and report on the cost of removing other snags which may become exposed, adding more sand to the beaches, and installing drainage to prevent sand from continuing to be swept away.

"We can do that best at the end of the summer," Mr. Warren said. "The water level is sinking steadily, and the study should be made when it's at its lowest."

Kelsey Bay Boy Drowns in Creek Near His Home

CAMPBELL RIVER—A 15-year-old Kelsey Bay youth was drowned in a creek near his home yesterday.

Dead is Gerald Dyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Dyer of Kelsey Bay, 32 miles north of here.

Police, who are making further investigations, said they had been told the youth was playing with two smaller boys in the creek when he went under. He came up again and the two boys on the bank called to him to float on his back while they ran for help.

Artificial respiration was tried without avail for several hours. An inquiry will be held.

NANAIMO—Nanaimo harbor has been through one of the busiest 48 hour periods ever.

Yesterday congestion ended when the British freighter "Saldanha" sailed after loading lumber. The German ship, "Karpfinger" arrived at noon yesterday, a few minutes after the Japanese "Columbia Maru" dropped anchor en route to Texada Island.

The 22,000-ton "Falconera," the biggest ship ever to enter Nanaimo, will start loading iron ore again at Texada Island early today.

LAKE COWICHAN—Village clerk W. A. Chappell suffered a broken arm in a fall at the civic pump house.

He slipped on some gravel while working with works foreman Vic Palmer recently.

LAKE COWICHAN—There were 52 hours more sunshine here during July than a year ago, forest service records show.

High temperature was 96 on July 27, one degree higher than the same month in 1959. Average maximum was 81, compared to 77.1 a year ago. Hours of sunshine were 316.2, compared to 252.8 in 1959.

LAKE COWICHAN—The village commission has imposed regulations forbidding sprinkling between 10 p.m. and 7 a.m.

Area affected includes the waterworks district. Maximum penalty is a $50 fine.

Swim Classes

Parents Proud, Happy

This is parents' week at the Colonist free swimming classes at Happyland, but parents weren't the only spectators yesterday.

There were little brothers and sisters, bigger sisters, a grandmother or two, and "just friends" as well as parents, most of them obviously proud and all of them intensely interested.

"I don't know how to swim myself," said one mother, "and that makes it all the more interesting."

"I wouldn't know how to go about telling the children how to swim, but my goodness, Mrs. Naysmith makes a wonderful job of it!"

"They don't have any fear of the water," said another, "and that makes a big difference. Oh, look at Hughie now!"

Most of the parents found their children doing well: the expressions ranged from a modest "not too bad" to an excited "very, very well."

Chief instructor Mrs. Margie Naysmith confirmed their impressions. The children in the free swimming classes, she said, are making good progress.

Frolicsome Cougar Shot Near Nanaimo

NANAIMO—A young cougar was shot here after playing in a yard for about half an hour. The cougar, thought to be about two years old and weighing 65 pounds, was shot in the yard of Steve Matson about two miles north of Nanaimo.

A resident of the area, Ken Lowry, shot the cougar just as Jim Dewar, the local predator hunter, was on his way to the scene. A cougar has been prowling the area for some time, alarming parents in the district who have had to keep the children indoors.

School Water Line Still Disputed Issue

DUNCAN—Cowichan School Board still hasn't found an expensive way to get water to the Somenos Junior High School.

"I wonder if the people (in the area) know the position we are in, and hope to ride in on our shirt-tails," said Trustee George Whittaker, Board chairman.

He made the comment after Trustees Wilf Peck reported of 24 letters sent out to residents of the Sherman Road area, 17 were returned with nine in favor and eight against.

The board has proposed that a pipeline be run from the city water system to Sherman Road, then to Somenos Road for the school. Each property owner on the way would pay $1.75 a front foot.

"Unless nearly all are willing to share the cost, and put up the money now, the board cannot afford it," said Trustee Peck.

The board will wait, while alternate schemes are studied, and to see if some of the residents change their minds. Drilling for wells and pumping equipment, another idea estimated to cost $5,000, has been rejected as too expensive.

Trustee Peck said work has started on the school and that it is to be completed by Christmas.

New Work Sought On Buttle Road

CAMPBELL RIVER — Provincial highways department will be asked to do more work on the Buttle Lake road by Campbell River Chamber of Commerce.

The road has been graded only once this year and two trailers broke down due to the hard going this week.

Many Don't Fit

Girdle Riding Up?

TORONTO (CP) — Verna Comings, stylist for a girdle and bra company, estimates that half the women she deals with are wearing ill-fitted, uncomfortable lingerie though their outer clothing may fit perfectly.

And she puts the blame largely on the sales people, not the customer.

"If a customer is shy to ask advice it's because the salesgirl makes her feel that way."

When Miss Comings began selling lingerie in 1925 the nipped-in waist was the fashion.

"The garments gave you a nipped-in waist all right, but they made you look hippy and busty."

This was followed by the flat look which made everyone look like a block.

"In those days everything was pink. It wasn't until later that we got white."

Advertisements used to describe the pink as flesh color, tea rose, nude or peach. Underclothing now comes in black and many pastel shades as well as white.

A Second World War shortage was responsible for introduction of the French bra. Because elastic was hard to obtain, the French model, which laced up the back, became popular. These are museum pieces now, Miss Comings said.

"All the control was from the straps and women's shoulders were ridged from the weight."

She says a properly fitted bra is controlled under the bustline and through the back. The back fastening should fit below the shoulder blades.

"No well-dressed woman is ever without a garment, even with shorts or slacks," she insists. There is even a knee-length girdle which has been designed for slims, Miss Comings says women need the moulding that a girdle gives.

"A girdle should be long enough to sit in," she says, adding that many women who complained that their girdles rode up bought a shorter model when they really needed a longer one.

Although it depends on the individual, most girls should begin wearing a bra at 11, she says.

The natural rounded bustline with a well-controlled waistline is the fashion and that's why basques are so popular now, Miss Comings says. In keeping with the feminine look in fashions, many designs are made in lace.

U.S. Fishermen Get Extra Day

SEATTLE (AP) — United States fishermen will have an extra day of sockeye salmon fishing next week to equalize catches with the Canadians, it was reported Thursday by Milo Moore, state fisheries director.

Mr. Moore said he was advised by the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission that the weekend closed period, which starts Thursday, will end at 4 a.m. Sunday for U.S. purse seiners and at 6 p.m. Sunday for gillnetters. This is one day earlier than regularly scheduled.

The commission estimated that the U.S. fleet will have caught 450,000 fish through Thursday in waters controlled by the commission, compared with a Canadian catch of 560,000.

Earlier the commission reported a big U.S. catch Monday put the U.S. fishermen ahead temporarily.

'Biggest Ship' On First Trip

LAUZON, Que. (CP) — The 41,000-ton tanker Emerillon, largest ship ever built in Canada, slipped her moorings at Davie Shipbuilding Ltd. Tuesday and sailed on her maiden voyage to South American ports where she is to pick up a cargo of crude oil for U.S. refineries.

The Emerillon was built at a cost of $11,000,000.

One of the world's great oil sources, the Kirkuk field in Iraq produced 35,000,000 tons in 1958.

Thousands of Lots Sold

Tourists Flock To Gulf Islands

NANAIMO — The Gulf Islands near Nanaimo are proving to be one of the most popular summer attractions for U.S. tourists visiting B.C. Local townsfolk, too, are trying to get away from the pressure of the city are finding some of the islands a refuge.

Real estate firms here are subdividing thousands of acres on the islands, and the lots are being snapped up almost as quickly as they go on sale. The recent subdivision project announced here is for $1,500,000, by Nanaimo Realty on Protection Island, the largest island facing Nanaimo.

FROM ALL OVER

Real estate men here say the popularity and boom of island land is prompting requests from all over the U.S. and Canada.

U.S. citizens as far away as New York, Wisconsin and California are making inquiries every day.

One Nanaimo realtor said: "These islands have decreased in population the last 40 years." This was caused by families moving there a little after the turn of the century and settling on farms. Later they found they couldn't make a living at farming and left for the city. There are many derelict farms on some of these islands.

RICH OVERNIGHT

Many, who held on to the land after moving to the city, have become rich overnight by the offers from real estate firms to develop the land for subdivision.

Gabriola Island had a population of 342 in 1940. Today it only has 482.

A real estate man dealing in island property said: "The American tourists as well as using the land for a summer home to spend a few months . . . have an eye for retirement also. He likes to maintain the rustic effect and think himself as a pioneer."

PROVINCIAL PARKS

The government also looks upon the islands as tourist attractions and provincial parks. Recently a five-acre park was opened by Recreation Minister Earl Westwood on Gabriola Island. A small wharf is being maintained by the government for people who come to the park from Vancouver and Vancouver Island by boat.

Most of the lots, at least the expensive ones, face the ocean and are usually close to the beach. And this is what is selling . . . the uncrowded

Cowichan Fair

Ancient Lamp To Be Shown

DUNCAN — A lamp believed to be 2,500 years old will be among a collection of antiques to be entered in the Cowichan exhibition Sept. 9 and 10.

Found in the strata of the Chaldean era near Bethlehem, the clay lamp appears to be a model similar to those used in rites before the dawn of Christianity.

"It is a very good specimen," said its owner, Roy S. Temple, 1031 Wharfedale. "Actually, it is too bad it is not in a collection of that period."

NORTH COWICHAN — Paving of Somenos and Chemainus Roads has been delayed because crews were needed to work on the government's Swartz Bay Road ferry terminus, council has been told by letter.

General Construction Ltd. officials wrote that the $50,000 job will be done in September. Somenos Women's Institute is to be offered the chance to purchase Old Somenos School, turned back to the municipality by School District 65 (Cowichan) because it will not be needed next year.

Victorian Convicted On Rarely Used Law

DUNCAN — Police dusted off a rarely used law yesterday that drivers should not use the centre of three-lane highways unless they have to.

And Reginald Wayne Antrobus, 2580 Sooke Road, Victoria, agreed. He pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $10 and $5.50 costs.

The charge read that he drove in the centre lane

while not passing a motor vehicle proceeding in the same direction.

The offence took place recently on the Trans-Canada Highway on Bamberton Hill when Antrobus was proceeding south.

The highway is only marked that slow traffic should use the right-hand lane. A coroner's jury here recommended, and police followed suit, that the signs should be replaced with some reading "Centre lane for passing only" after two Victoria men died when their cars collided on the hill in the centre lane.

Reeve Donald Morton said years ago the municipality sprayed any plant that raised its fertile blossom. Then residents complained. Now conditions have reverted "the other way," he said.

Toxic Treatment Set For Noxious Weeds

NORTH COWICHAN — Noxious weeds will be getting some obnoxious treatment for their exuberant growing habits here.

The municipality will start a limited program of spraying poison on a few roadside areas where growth of weeds is a detriment.

UN SET TO MOVE SATURDAY ON SECESSIONISTS IN CONGO

Too young to call her "Grand-mum" as his older brother and sister do, five-months-old Prince Andrew nestles in arms of Queen Mother Elizabeth in garden of Clarence House at royal party marking the

Tired Firefighters Given a Breather

KAMLOOPS (CP) — While Kamloops and Nelson districts reaped the benefits of rain Thursday the northern Prince George district paid the price in lightning strikes as new summer storms passed over British Columbia's fire battle fields.

"This is the kind of breather we really needed," said Kamloops forester Norman McRae after his district received the first helpful rain in its month-long firefighting campaign. No lightning strikes were reported in the district and in some areas as much as half an inch of rain was recorded.

While the storms also brought some rain to southern parts of the Prince George district, nothing but lightning was reported from the western area and eight new fires were discovered during the day. Spotter planes were expected to find further outbreaks.

There now are 230 fires in the Kamloops district, 100 in the Nelson district and 38 in the Prince George district, which had suffered little from forest fires until this week.

Most dramatic effect of the rain was seen in the Sicamous area, 70 miles east of here, where half an inch fell on 17 fires previously burning out of control.

Mr. McRae said the rain gave threefold assistance to the 2470 men and 159 bulldozers fighting fires in the Kamloops district.

It enabled the firefighters to complete guards around the major outbreaks, gave them a chance to get within striking distance of the flames in smaller outbreaks and tackle them before they could spread and made it possible to isolate hot spots of bigger blazes.

Obscurity to Freedom Upper Volta's Big Leap

QUAGADOUGOU, Upper Volta (AP) — Upper Volta, not even marked on maps 13 years ago, yesterday became an independent nation.

The proclamation of independence was read just after midnight Thursday night by President Maurice Yameogo in this inland state in old French West Africa. Upper Volta has 3,500,000 people.

The Upper Volta region was created in 1947 when France reorganized the administrative boundaries that formerly divided the territory among neighboring Sudan, Niger and the Ivory Coast.

Upper Volta was the third state to proclaim independence from France this week. The others were Dahomey and Niger. The Ivory Coast will follow in two days.

All the African states of the French community will be independent by next November but all have stated their desire to remain in, and share the economic benefits of, the community.

Typhoon Toll Passes 100

TAIPEI, Formosa (Reuters) — The death toll of typhoon Shirley shot up to 104 as more reports were received from flood-stricken districts in central and southern Formosa. There are 90 known missing and 400 injured so far.

Don't Let Rights Ever Erode

John D's Plea

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons passed the bill of rights unanimously Thursday and Prime Minister Diefenbaker said it now is up to every Canadian to see that fundamental freedoms and human rights are never allowed to erode away.

In an emotional wind-up speech in the debate which began on July 1, Dominion Day, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

GOOD OF CANADA
"I think what we have done has been right. I think it has been for the good of Canada. I think it witnesses our belief in the guidance of God, and realization that law, justice and morality can be put in words and perpetuated in statutes."

The bill, he said, was something to which he had devoted "a not inconsiderable part of my life and interest." It was fitting that it should pass in the Commons on the anniversary of the outbreak of the First World War, a day that marked the beginning of the divisions which prevail between peoples and nations in the world today.

Night Court Has No Cases

PORT COQUITLAM (CP) — Nobody showed up Wednesday night for the second session of the Lower Mainland's only night traffic court.

There were no cases to be heard, so Magistrate J. J. Lye stayed home, too.

"I'm willing to come in and hear the cases," he said, "but first someone's got to lay the charges."

Kefauver Nominated

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Senator Estes Kefauver Thursday night was re-nominated for a third term over segregationist Judge Andrew T. Taylor in a Democratic primary billed as a test of Southern U.S. attitudes over civil rights and states rights.

Death Penalty Sidetracked

OTTAWA (CP) — It appears unlikely that the question of abolishing Canada's death penalty for murder will be decided at the current session of Parliament.

More probable is that the issue will be revived at the next session either by continuing debate on a private member's resolution favoring abolition, or on the strength of a possible government proposal to deal with the matter. On one hand, the leading abolitionists indicated in the Commons Thursday that they are reluctant to have their own motion come to a vote after further debate, which was left standing for five months after two days of argument last February.

Ostensibly, they felt that there is no demand for an immediate decision and that any vote taken now, with House attendance thinned by the approach of prorogation, may not take in enough MPs to be significant.

JOE WALKER
... fastest man

2,150 Miles an Hour New Air Speed Mark

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The X-15 rocket plane zoomed high over the California desert Thursday on the fastest manned flight on record—2,150 miles an hour.

Husky, curly-haired Joe Walker may even have gone a trifle faster. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said it expects instrument checks to raise the mark.

Walker went all out in the X-15 for four minutes and 15 seconds. He hit maximum speed at 66,000 feet, just as his fuel supply gave out, then coasted to 78,000 before swooping down for a 200-mile-an-hour landing on the sun-baked mud of Rogers Dry Lake.

He eclipsed the old mark of 2,094 m.p.h. set in the X-2 research plane in 1956 by air force Capt. Milburn Apt—who was killed moments later.

Deadly 'Meal' Kills Tots

DANIA, Fla. (AP) — A lunch prepared by 12-year-old Ernest Nuby Jr., caring for his six brothers and sisters Thursday killed three of the children and left two others seriously ill.

Coroner's officers termed the deaths accidental.

The deadly meal consisted of guava fruit, pancake powder, sliced onion, salt and spices—and roach powder.

Sheriff's Deputy Jim Spears says each Negro child got about two teaspoonsful of the roach powder, which was fatal to Dorothy May, 4, Marilyn Juanita, 9, and Charles, 11.

Two other children are seriously ill. Ernest didn't eat any of the mixture and none was fed to Juanita, 2.

The parents had left Ernest in charge of the children while they were at work.

Draft Starts In Katanga

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (AP) — Katanga's Premier Moise Tshombe Thursday night raised doubts about the arrival of United Nations troops in his province but there were firm indications that the UN intends to move in Saturday as scheduled.

Tshombe, who declared Wednesday that UN forces would have to fight their way into Katanga, held a 2½-hour meeting with Ralph Bunche, troubleshooting UN under-secretary.

The premier later told reporters UN soldiers may not arrive Saturday. Then he hedged and said he would not be surprised if they come after all.

Bunche declined any comment on the talks, but reliable informants in Leopoldville, capital of the Congo central government, said there has been no change in UN plans to move troops into Katanga. They added that it is unlikely there will be any change.

AFRICANS, DUE

Three companies of Swedish troops in the Leopoldville area packed their gear to head the units set to come into this self-declared independent province. Troops of some African nation are expected to join the force.

Tshombe, somewhat vague on the matter, said he would not be shocked if the UN forces do arrive, although he had already begun drafting men to oppose them if necessary.

TALKS DELAYED

Bunche and Tshombe sent a message to UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld, now in the Congo capital of Leopoldville, asking him about a Security Council session on Katanga. Talks were suspended until Hammarskjöld replies, possibly today.

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)

Two Canadian medical teams moved into Coquilhatville Thursday to help maintain health services in the town.

The Congolese government yesterday ordered Belgian ambassador Jean van den Bosch to get out before Monday and renounced "for the time being" all economic and technical aid from Belgium.

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Congo Premier Patrice Lumumba Thursday called on Africans and their friends to "wage a final battle against colonialism."

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) — The U.S. navy successfully fired a Polaris missile 1,300 miles Thursday, the farthest yet travelled by this submarine rocket.

'Can't Beat Bennett'

Socreds Will Win, Liberals Gain, City Voters Feel

By TERRY HAMMOND

An overwhelming number of Greater Victoria voters believe B.C.'s Socred government will be swept back into power, perhaps with an increased majority, a Colonist survey showed last night.

A sampling of voters in all parts of the area showed relatively strong support for the Bennett administration, but an even stronger conviction that it can't be beaten in 1960.

A majority of those contacted felt the government would gain not less than two seats to add to its present overwhelming 38-seat roster. And of those who saw the government increasing its strength a majority expected it to come from the CCF party.

Some 30 per cent of those who saw the Socreds as invincible on Sept. 12 were anxious to proclaim that they were not supporters of the party but were simply impressed by its power to win the election.

Among those who felt the government would win the election but lose seats in the process, the prevailing opinion was that the Liberals would gain.

About 20 per cent of those reached by the Colonist said they thought the government would hold its own at the polls, neither gaining nor losing.

A mere 3 per cent predicted

the government's downfall and most of these admitted they were strongly linked to one of the opposition parties. All asked to remain anonymous.
